Put Your Savings Into Diamonds

Diamonds in your possession represent money—more money than you pay for them after you have worn them for a while, for the advance in prices is marked, and there is positively no danger of diamonds depreciating in value. Indeed, it is a well known fact that in less than twenty-five years' time there will be as much locked-up capital in a diamond necklace as there is in the average industrial concern to-day.

An investment of a few hundred, or even a few thousand dollars in "Challoner & Mitchell" Diamonds should prove very profitable.

We would remind the tourist that Diamonds enter Canada free of duty, which means a substantial saving to them in purchasing here.

DISASTROUS EXPLOSION ON BATTLESHIP GEORGIA

Two Bags of Powder Burst Into Flames Among Crew of Turret

SIX MEN DIE ON WAY TO SHORE

Others Fatally Injured, Including Son of Admiral Goodrich—Fearful Sufferings if Wounded.

Boston, July 15.—With six of her officers and crew dead, and fifteen others either dying or suffering from terrible burns received in an explosion of powder in the after super-imposed turret, the battleship Georgia steamed slowly into Boston harbor from the target practice grounds in Cape Cod bay late today, and landed the dead and injured at the Charlestown navy yard. Upon the arrival of the Georgia there became generally known the details of the most frightful naval catastrophe that has ever taken place along the New England coast.

The accident occurred shortly before noon today, while the Georgia's crew were at target practice off Barnstable in Cape Cod bay, in some manner, as yet unexplained, two bags of powder became ignited and by the terrible flash that followed after, the turret crew, consisting of three officers and eighteen men, were enveloped in fire and suffered horrible injuries. One officer and five men died before the vessel reached here.

The dead are: Faulkner Goldthwaite, midshipman, Kent; William Thatcher, chief turret captain, Wilmington, Del.; Joseph William Bark, Seaman, Quincy, Mass.; George Hamilton, ordinary seaman, South Framingham, Mass.; George Miller, ordinary seaman, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Wm. Thomas, seaman, Newport, R. I.

Injured: Lieut. Goodrich, Brooklyn, N. Y., fatally; John T. Cruise, midshipman, Nebraska, very seriously; Frank Schlapp, boatswain's mate, second class, North Adams, Mass.; Chas. Hensen, gunner's mate, first class; Arly Taglund, chief yeoman, Richmond, Mass.; Wm. Phair, seaman, Brooklyn, N. Y., fatally; Edwin, seaman, Lynn, Mass., fatally; John Bush, ordinary seaman, New York, probably fatally; Chas. L. Ech, ordinary seaman, Frankfort, Ind.; John A. Fone, ordinary seaman, Trenton, N. J.; Harold L. Gilbert, ordinary seaman, Cleveland; Louis C. Meese, ordinary seaman, Buryea, Ohio; Samuel L. Rosenburg, burger, ordinary seaman, Philadelphia; James E. Thomas, ordinary seaman, Brooklyn, fatally. Four others received minor injuries, but their names were not given, and they were not taken off the ship.

The explosion occurred in the after super-imposed turret, where the men under command of Lieut. Goodrich, son of Rear-Admiral Goodrich, commandant of the New York navy yard, and Midshipman Faulkner Goldthwaite and John T. Cruise, were operating the eight-inch guns.

The guns in the forward turrets had finished eight rounds of practice and the guns in the after turret had fired one round. Two cases, as the big hundred-pound bags of powder are called, had just been sent up through the ammunition hoist, and were in arms of the leader, whose name was withheld by the ship's officers. The leader stood at the breach of one of the eight-inch guns all ready to insert a cartridge. At that instant smoke was seen, and two men who stood near the loader saw a black spot on the bag, indicating that the charge had ignited and was smouldering. The loader discovered the spot in the same minute, and threw himself forward on his face, shouting a warning to his mates. The other men who had seen the spot were Rich and Hansell, and they also threw themselves on the floor of the turret. Before the other men in the turret could understand why the loader should so act, there was a blinding flash as the burning powder exploded. Flames, smoke and more than a score of men were confined, there was no defending report, nor did the vessel suffer any injury, but every nook of the turret was filled with flames.

The loader was fearfully hurt, as was every other man in the turret except Rich and Hansell, who were scorched. Blinded by the smoke and flames, choked by the fumes, and maddened with pain, the men scrambled in agony. Some staggered blindly up the ladder to the hatchway in the top of the turret, while others crept along the turret floor begging piteously for assistance. Lieut. Goodrich and Seaman Maltch became crazed, staggered up to the ladder to the top of the turret, and threw themselves headlong into the sea in a frenzied effort to drown themselves.

The shipmates of the unfortunate men rushed to their assistance and tenderly carried them out of the fire-blackened turret to the ship's hospital, where their burns were dressed by surgeons. In the meantime Lieut. Goodrich and Maltch had been rescued by a launch returning from an inspection of the target. The surgical staff of the Georgia was soon reinforced by the surgeons of the other vessels of the fleet, who had been informed of the accident by wireless telegraphy and others means.

An examination of the turret after the accident failed to show that any serious damage resulted to the ship. Immediately upon learning of the accident, Capt. Henry McRae, commander of the Georgia, notified Rear-Admiral Chas. B. Thomas, commander of the squadron, of what had occurred. Rear-Admiral Thomas ordered an investigation board to examine into the causes of the accident. Meantime two theories are entertained. One is that a spark from the discharge of the after

COUNCIL OF WOMEN MEETING AT VANCOUVER

Many Delegates--Secretary Straus at Canadian Club--Consul Dudley Injured

Vancouver, July 15.—The National Council of Women opened its convention here this morning. There are a good number of delegates here from the east, including Lady Edgar, of Toronto, president; Mrs. (Dr.) Brown, known as "Ruth Benson," and Miss McDonald, correspondent for the Toronto News. The day was passed in committees in private session. This evening a public reception to delegates was given by the mayor and city council.

This afternoon Hon. Oscar G. Straus, secretary of commerce and labor in President Roosevelt's cabinet, addressed the Canadian club at luncheon. He spoke of the commercial spirit of the age, extolling it as a means to the preservation of peace. He referred in most friendly terms to Japan, saying that the United States had been the first to invite Japan to the council board of nations, and he believed Japan was grateful, and that both the United States and Canada would share in Japan's prosperity. He eulogized British institutions, saying that if he were not an American he would certainly come under the British crown. He leaves by the next Victoria boat on his way south, and is travelling by way of San Francisco to Honolulu.

Col. Dudley, U.S. consul, met with a painful accident this evening. He had been attending the reception to the National Council of Women in Bender hall, and was coming down the stairs when one of his crutches slipped and he fell into the hallway below, receiving an ugly cut in the head. He was taken home in a hack, and from last reports was resting comfortably. He will probably be around again in a day or two.

The bodies of two loggers, killed in northern woods, were brought here today. Henry Porsty was killed in a logging camp at Gilbert Island, by being struck by a limb knocked from another tree, and Charles Nyland was struck and killed by a falling tree at Menzies bay.

Incendiarism in New Burnswick

St. John, N. B., July 15.—A fire that is said to have been of incendiary origin caused a loss of quarter of a million dollars at Hartland, Carlton county, this morning. The blaze broke out in W. F. Thornton's drug store, and it is declared the place was found saturated with oil. The fire apparatus had been tampered with, a coupling having been removed and two joints of hose cut.

CHARGES OF PERJURY IN TRIAL OF HAYWOOD

Warrant Issued for Another Witness—Testimony Regarding Orchard's Relatives

Boise, July 15.—Another warrant charging perjury against a witness who has testified for the defence in the trial of Wm. D. Haywood for the murder of Frank Steenbergen, was issued this evening. C. W. Allor, formerly a telegraph operator and ticket agent for the Florence & Cripple Creek railroad at Cripple Creek, is charged with the offense by the prosecuting attorney of Asa county.

Eleven witnesses in rebuttal were examined today. Harry Orchard was asked about his acquaintance with some witnesses for the defence, who have testified as to his movements. On cross-examination Orchard admitted that his uncle, Peter McKiney, committed suicide by hanging in Canada some years ago and was insane before he killed himself. The defence also tried to show that his maternal grandfather was insane, his monomania being imaginary crimes committed long since in Ireland. Orchard was cross-examined at considerable length by Mr. Richardson. The general effect of his evidence was that the explosion at the Bradley home could not have been caused by gas.

During the afternoon session in support of the charge of conspiracy, in which it is alleged that the Mine Owners' association, the Citizens' Alliance and the Pinkerton Detective agency were concerned. Allor swore that he saw Orchard and D. Scott together at the station of the Florence & Cripple Creek railway one Sunday about three weeks prior to the explosion of the Independence station. Scott swore today that he was not in Cripple Creek. A number of witnesses corroborated him. Information was therefore sworn after court adjourned, charging Allor with perjury.

The explosion at the house of Fred Bradley in San Francisco was again under consideration today. The manager of the Boise Gas company, C. D. Lamson, once a resident of New York, qualified for the state as an expert. He discredited the assertion that gas could have been ignited by the glow at the end of a cigar. He was cross-examined at considerable length by Mr. Richardson. The general effect of his evidence was that the explosion at the Bradley home could not have been caused by gas.

Some excitement was caused by a controversy between E. F. Richardson and E. M. Sabine, an attorney of Idaho Springs, Colo. Sabine was engaged in the prosecution of a number of cases charging fourteen members of the Western Federation of Miners with crime and conspiracy during the labor troubles of 1903. Mr. Richardson was the defending counsel in these cases.

Victorians Do Honor to British Columbia's Champion on His Return from Successful Fight in London for Better Terms

Welcome.
Voice of the Great Tribune!
Which owns no creed nor faith,
Whose sovereign note disdains the crown
Of purblind partisan.
Surge from the nation's breast to welcome him.
Thy stalwart, loyal son,
Who, on the field of high renown,
Has dared and fought and won.

An enormous gathering of citizens, ladies and gentlemen, representative of all interests and all shades of political opinion, greeted Hon. Richard McBride, premier of British Columbia, at the Victoria theatre where he was given a reception last night under the auspices of the Liberal-Conservative association of this city. The building was packed to its capacity, and the enthusiasm, which was fitted to the occasion, was marked by a thorough unanimity of participation.

By his remarks and his manner of delivery the premier showed that he did not regard the meeting as being of a political character. His speech which was delivered in reply to an address and presentation from the Conservatives of Victoria was a calm and dispassionate recital of the history of the "Better Terms" movement, an explanation of the process by which success had been so far accomplished, an instructive and educative talk, guarded against anything in the nature of an attempt to incite prejudice or a claim for glory either for himself or the party of which he is the leader. The conclusion was an earnest appeal to all alike to continue the fight in a constitutional manner persistently and consistently.

When the curtain went up and the vast audience saw the premier surrounded by a large number of Victoria's most prominent citizens the initial applause demonstrated that he had the solid sympathy of the gathering, and when he arose to receive the address and presentation he was made to feel that his efforts in behalf of the province were most handsomely appreciated. When he had concluded his speech and three cheers were called by the chairman the great audience rose as one person and responded most vigorously.

On the platform with the premier were, G. H. Barnard, president of the Liberal-Conservative association, in the chair, Hon. R. G. Tatlow, minister of finance; Hon. Dr. Young, provincial secretary; Col. the Hon. E. G. Prior; Hon. C. E. Pooley, K. C.; A. E. McPhillips, K. C., M. P. P.; H. B. Thompson, M. P. P.; Frederick Davey, M. P. P.; N. H. Hayward, M. P. P.; H. Dallas Helmcken, K. C.; R. F. Green, W. Blakenmore, Dr. Rowe, R. T. Elliot, George A. Fraser, James Murray, J. A. Armstrong, George Jay, G. Anderson, P. Fleming, R. Hayward, F. Leroy, P. Castall Sydney, C. F. Todd, James Critchley, A. S. Barton, S. Munnell, L. S. Eaton, T. Argyle, W. P. Butchart, A. W. Hayden, D. R. Ker, F. G. Vernon, G. A. Kirk, J. Bolden, A. G. Sargison, W. C. Moresby, A. Kerr, C. H. Lugin, A. McKeon, Stuart Williams, P. J. Riddell, H. M. Grahame, A. Blyth, C. Sedewitz, M. Cookson, George Weeks, Lieut. Clark James Muirhead, Sr., Wm. Harrison, R. Nutshell, E. E. Leason, C. M. Blackstock, William Mable, T. Redding, R. Ryan, A. Henderson, D. McIntosh, A. K. Munro, E. C. B. Bagshawe, James Mann, E. Briggs, R. Roper, R. Eccles, H. H. Malow, George Penketh, William Brown, Capt. Ridgway Wilson, T. McManus, J. P. Shalleross, J. W. Bolden, J. W. Warner, E. A. Lewis, J. S. Heald, W. H. Price, secretary and others.

The stage was draped with the national colors and decorated with flowers. The Fifth Regiment band was present and discoursed music before the meeting and at the close. In opening the meeting Mr. Barnard said he was sure that it was great gratification to the premier to see so many people gathered to welcome him home from his important mission to England—people of all shades of political opinion—many who did not always see eye to eye with him, but who were with him heart and soul in the cause for which he had been to London. Mr. Barnard reviewed the history of British Columbia's fight for the movement down to the present, emphasizing the fact that it was not till Premier McBride made his great fight at Ottawa conference that any great hope of success. Then an admission was obtained that this province was entitled to special treatment. An effort had been made by the Dominion government to kill the effect admission by attempting to have the words "final and unalterable" inserted in an amendment to the B. N. A. Act which the Imperial government was asked to pass. The result of that effort was fresh in the minds of everybody—Hon. Richard McBride had defeated it. By the work he had done for the province he had attained a position in the regard of his fellow citizens of British Columbia that was final and unalterable.

Mr. Barnard's apt conclusion to his remarks caused a grand outburst of applause. He then presented Premier McBride with the following address: To the Honorable Richard McBride, K.C., M.P.P., Premier of the Province of British Columbia.
SIR—The Conservatives of the city of Victoria desire to place upon record their high appreciation of the valuable services rendered by you to the province of British Columbia on the occasion of your recent visit to London. In connection with the demand of this province for justice at the hands of the Dominion government.

We wish to bear testimony to the great ability and acumen which you brought to bear in the successful accomplishment of your every difficult mission, and to the fact that the efforts you have put forth on the occasion of the introduction in the Imperial House of Commons of the bill to amend the British North America act, resulted in the elimination from the bill, as originally drawn, of the words "final and unalterable," thereby leaving it open to the province to continue its battle for due and proper recognition at the hands of the federal authorities.
By your masterly treatment of this complicated and difficult question, both in Ottawa at the provincial conference, and in London, you have won for yourself an enviable position amongst the leading statesmen of Canada.
We beg to ask your acceptance of the accompanying piece of plate as token of the esteem and renewed confidence in your leadership of the Conservatives in this province, and to express the hope that you will long continue to lead the party to victories even greater than those won in the past.
Signed on behalf of the Conservatives of the city of Victoria, the 15th day of July, 1907.
G. H. BARNARD.
President Liberal Conservative Ass'n.
W. H. PRICE.
Secretary.
Premier McBride's Reply.
Mr. McBride said in reply: "Mr. Barnard, ladies and gentlemen,—I can at once confess that the very splendid and hearty reception that you have given me here in my home city of Victoria, tonight overcomes me. For the moment I feel at a loss to find language with which I can properly show the appreciation of this splendid tribute that it most certainly deserves.
You will, however, permit me to say that from the very bottom of my heart I am grateful to the Conservatives of the city of Victoria, and to all the people of the city of Victoria, who have done so much to make my home-coming so pleasant and so enthusiastic.

WILL EXTEND MAINS TO EXHIBITION GROUNDS

City Council Last Night Unofficially Expressed Its Favor of Proceeding With Work

The city council last evening expressed unofficially its concurrence in a motion which Ald. Henderson will introduce at the next session of the city council. This will provide for a bylaw authorizing the borrowing of about $2,000 upon the security of the water rates for the laying of a wooden main to the agricultural grounds. The matter was introduced by ex-Ald. Yates, who appeared before the council and pointed out the necessity for instant action in the matter. It was not taken into consideration at the present time, but it will be taken up at the next session of the council. The council decided upon the above course of action.

SEVERAL RECOMMENDATIONS PASSED BY THE COUNCIL

Report of the Streets, Bridges and Sewers Committee Was Passed as Presented

The streets, bridges and sewers committee having considered the undermentioned subjects beg to report and recommend as follows:

1. Re communication from Mr. Hetherington, wishing a sewer on Hill street, your committee recommends that a sewer be laid on said street from Cook street to Chester street, a distance of 100 feet, at a cost of about $350.00.
2. Recommended that a surface drain be laid on John street, at a cost of $200; also on Curry street, at a cost of $150; also that a plank sidewalk be laid on west side of Chambers street, near Elizabeth street, at a cost of $25.
Also that a plank sidewalk be laid on Ormond street, in front of the Central school, the cost of which is to be borne entirely by the city and amounting to $650.
3. Re communication from Leigh and Sons, et al, concerning cement sidewalk on Garbally road, recommended that they be informed that as there are as yet no houses on the north side of said street between Gore road and Selkirk road, except the one at the corner of Gore road, there is at present no great necessity for this expenditure, and the council cannot grant the request.

PREMIER McBRIDE IS WELCOMED HOME

cause to the government for the time being at Ottawa, with a view to securing additional treatment, all that might be expected from this quarter would be a reference to the Imperial government. And the suggestion was that British Columbia might as well return home and be satisfied with what had been done.

Had Strong Ground.

"Well, ladies and gentlemen, backed up by a resolution of the Imperial parliament, and better than that, by the will of the great people of British Columbia I felt that I was indeed occupying very strong grounds when I took my passage to London, England, with credentials which would give me some standing before the London authorities. (Loud and continued applause.)

"Immediately on my arrival in England, I submitted these credentials to Lord Elgin, secretary for the colonies and I might say, sir, that the reception given me by that gentleman was very hearty indeed. He at once decided to have a capacity to grasp the question, and from what I could see, appeared to be very much concerned with the situation. It was indicated to me that the bill necessary to carry out the wish of the federal parliament at Ottawa had been practically framed and that it had not been for British Columbia's attitude, first in meeting the Imperial authorities that I was about to proceed to London and then by following up that notification by official action by my own presence in the city of London, it is likely that further steps might have been taken, and the bill might have passed without any outside interference whatever.

Given Every Opportunity.

"However, let me say at once that his lordship exhibited an anxiety to see that I was given every opportunity to have my case fully presented to the Imperial government, and in the course of the two months, during which time I was continuously in London, with the exception of three or four days, I had many opportunities offered me (of which, of course, I took advantage) when I could go before Mr. Churchill, Lord Elgin and Sir Francis Hopgood, the permanent under-secretary, and Hamar Greenwood, M. P., private secretary to Lord Elgin, when the claims of the province could be discussed in detail and at great length. (Hear, hear.)

Sir Wilfrid's Attitude.

"Now, sir, in a few words, what has been the outcome of my visit to London, England? I was obliged to go there to face the resolution of the federal government, which resolution contained the words 'final and unalterable.' I came to London, and I might say I had the privilege, as well as the pleasure, of discussing the question with Sir Wilfrid Laurier. I might say that Sir Wilfrid Laurier did not appear to show the slightest disposition towards meeting me. He was very frank, and very keen to show that so far as his government was concerned, it was not prepared to meet upon the resolution of the federal House of Commons, and that there was absolutely nothing open in the way of a road that might permit of some negotiations between Ottawa and myself at London, before the colonial department.

Went to Imperial Authorities

"Well then, ladies and gentlemen, it was undoubtedly my duty to express as strongly as I could to the Imperial authorities the views of the people of British Columbia, and greater than that, the views of the people of the province of British Columbia which were embodied in the resolution and the petition submitted to the local government. After a stay of six weeks I was enabled to obtain a provisional letter from Lord Elgin, but I do not think that I am privileged to divulge the contents of the letter until it has been submitted to the lieutenant governor. However, I do think that I can tell you that letter said in so many words that the bill to be submitted and passed by the Imperial government would not contain the words 'final and unalterable.' (Applause.)

"Furthermore, the colonial secretary had carefully gone into the case of the province of British Columbia, and fully appreciated the circumstances of my mission, and while he would not express any opinion with regard to the sufficiency of my mission, I was nevertheless gratified by the assurance of the colonial secretary that the words 'final and unalterable' would be dropped from the bill and thus the way is left open to British Columbia. Thus the final settlement between the federal government at Ottawa and British Columbia is still left open. It may be that now we will be in a position to get a commission of enquiry.

"I may say that I received Lord Elgin's letter about 5 o'clock on the June 5, and next morning I presented my reply to Sir Francis Hopgood, Objectionable Words Struck Out.

"The next step takes me to the time when we went to the under secretary of State for the Imperial government. The proposed amendment, the elimination of the words 'final and unalterable' was discussed. Mr. Churchill took occasion to say that he had been acquainted by Mr. Fielding of the requirements of the province of British Columbia, and also by Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Now if you consult the Hansard of the Imperial house you will find that Mr. Winston Churchill said that while not able to meet the wishes of the province of British Columbia in its entirety, yet he had gone so far as he could and that no objectionable words would be eliminated. (Applause.)

Made Special Mention

"Mr. Churchill went further and made specific mention of the words which were so objectionable, and furthermore said that these words should be eliminated. According to the rules of the Imperial house of commons there was no debate at this stage of the bill, and the next official proceeding came at the second reading. Now, gentlemen, Mr. Winston Churchill, though he is under secretary of State, is the spokesman of the government of England in the Imperial legislature, and I do not think I am far wrong when I say that he is the adviser of Lord Elgin, and I think that there is more to be placed on his opinion than of the upper assembly. It appears to be a part of the unwritten law of the land that all great colonial questions must come before this man. You cannot expect that the details of colonial questions can come before these other men. It would be scarcely fair that we should expect them to know the pros and cons of every colonial question that come before them; it is sufficient that they are conversant with the broad facts and are interesting themselves in the matter. From the questions directed to me personally, and other enquiries made, I could see that matters appertaining to Canada created a very great interest and were receiving their due heed of interest.

Reported Change of Front
"Having accomplished this, I took my passage home, and arrived in my own country and finally in my own home. The third reading of the bill came up on June 27, and I sailed for home on the Empress of Ireland the next day. It is with some concern that I have to tell you that press dispatches specially received from London say that Lord Elgin has proposed an amendment to the British North America act which will include these objectionable terms, and that the words had been included by the influence of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. I say at once that, in face of the written communications in my pocket, I take no stock in these dispatches in view of the written declaration of the colonial office and the statement of Mr. Winston Churchill. I say that in view of these statements, I do not consider that the Imperial government would ever consider the advisability of going back on the assurances that were given to me and that I have given to the people of British Columbia. (Loud applause.)

Left With Assurances

"That intimation reached me this afternoon, and I at once communicated with Lord Elgin and Mr. Winston Churchill expressing my assurance that I took no stock in such a rumor and stating that I considered it my duty to advise them of the report. Now sir, ladies and gentlemen, I wish to be emphatic, as emphatic as the English language allows me to be, that in view of the statement of the colonial secretary and of Mr. Winston Churchill, the Imperial government would not in any way at all deviate from the course it assumed it would follow out. I felt that I was leaving England. I think that the keenest partisan who hears me will agree that I had received an assurance in which I could believe. (Applause.)

Would Go Back to London

"I have not yet received any answer to the message to which I have referred, but should news be received that would make it patent that a breach of faith had been committed or that I was not to be trusted, I would be my bounden duty to make arrangements, and spare no effort to get back to London so quickly as transportation would take me there. (Applause.)

Affects the Dominion

"Now, ladies and gentlemen, with regard to this question generally, I think that there can be no division of opinion but that the decision of this question affects the Dominion of Canada as a whole more than it does any individual province which is but a unit in confederation. Time after time I have stated on public platforms that the responsibility resting on the local government is a very grave one. Indeed, here we have the largest sections of the country under one government in the whole of the empire, the largest province in the Dominion of Canada and I cannot call to mind a larger section of the empire under the control of the local government.

Why Extra Help Is Needed

"Here we are under a single administration and we differ from the other provinces, we are surrounded on the northern boundary by the territory of Alaska, while on the south we are bounded by the United States; we reach to the 49th parallel to the Alaska boundary; we take in Vancouver Island and the other islands to the north. When you consider the tremendous amount of work which devolves on the administration to look after all this great section of the empire, you must admit that it is a very heavy and onerous responsibility indeed. We are asked to police this whole country for the protection of life and property, appoint government agencies, appoint schools, build roads and bridges and otherwise administer the law. Go a step further and consider that this mandate emanates from a population of between 275,000 and 325,000 people, and it cannot be denied that we are charged with a very heavy responsibility. When that is considered it must be admitted that the government of this country has been carried out in a very hardy and, let me say, a thoroughly British way.

A Credit to the Empire.

"I care not how much you may criticize this local administration, or any of its predecessors, but I claim, ladies and gentlemen, since British Columbia has been a settled community she has always had the reputation of being a well governed country, and she has always been looked upon with pride by Britishers the world over as being an ideal community in which to live and in which to hold property. (Loud applause.)

"There may have been times and occasions when everything in British Columbia was not so ordered, and did not so continue as would have suited the people of this country, and our brethren east of the mountains, but I think that in general it must be admitted that despite the circumstances under which I have just referred, the very exacting conditions which we are obliged to meet in British Columbia, the local and home government of this country has always been most creditable to the people of this Island—and aye, to the people of the British Empire.

A Wonderful Achievement.

"Why fancy, gentlemen, the astounding statistics which I give you, when I tell you, this handful of people in British Columbia has constructed, and today maintains, nearly 9,000 miles of trunk road, nearly 7,000 miles of trails, and ever so many smaller and perhaps less important highways and means of communication throughout the length and breadth of this country. When you consult those statistics for speed, you will see once again on this little island there is sufficient evidence of the great work that lies before the people of this province. (Loud applause.)

"That is, it is the duty of the home governing people to attract the attention not only of our sister provinces, but of the world, and that the Imperial authorities are well, and undoubtedly we have in a measurable extent brought to bear upon the situation the attention of the other provinces of the Dominion. We have certainly had this acknowledgment, that we are entitled to better terms. (Hear, hear.)

Tardy and Insufficient.

"But I say here tonight—to the people of Victoria, that that acknowledgment, that tardy action, when they said, 'While we acknowledge you are up against these very hard conditions, and while because of the permanent physical conditions which must be met with in the province of British Columbia, we make this admission, yet

at the same time we propose in applying the act to apply it only in the way of $100,000 per annum, and that for ten years.

Long-Sustained Fight.

"Now, gentlemen, in and out of season, the government of British Columbia have followed up in a very consistent fashion this question of 'better terms.' The present Lieutenant-Governor, Mr. Dunsmuir, during his term in office, was very emphatic in his protest to Ottawa against the treatment that was being at that time meted out to British Columbia, and in making his demand for better terms and further consideration for the rights of this country, I think he took a position which is above criticism. All the details were marshalled in a fashion which would very easily permit of any member of the senate at once criticizing the true position of British Columbia. Mr. Dunsmuir did not meet with any substantial success.

"Next followed my friend Col. Prior, who sits to my right here this evening, and during his term of office he also made representations to the federal authorities for better treatment, and outlined the rights of the province to get better treatment at the hands of the Ottawa authorities.

Ottawa's Ultimatum.

"Then in 1903 the present administration took office, and that administration took every care to follow up the position as had already been outlined by Hon. Mr. Dunsmuir and Col. Prior. Finally it was communicated to us from Ottawa that there was some anxiety being felt there that the question should be considered, but that the consideration must await a conference of provincial premiers. And, of course, this brings me back again to the circumstances that mean an adjudication of our claims against the federal government at Ottawa, and the statement that we must take a million dollars more over ten years, at the rate of $100,000 a year as a permanent settlement of our claim and demands.

What Province Has Paid.

"Now, then, ladies and gentlemen, perhaps it may be news to some of you when I tell you that a very careful analysis of all of the authoritative statistics that may be found, and compiled down in the city of Ottawa, will show that since the province of British Columbia has come into Confederation it has paid to the federal treasury at Ottawa $20,000,000 in gold coins of the realm more than she has ever taken from that source in the way of national government. Putting it in this way, the people of British Columbia, since coming into Confederation, have been fined $20,000,000 for the privilege that they have derived from such.

Was Not Money Proposition

"I say that the fathers of confederation never considered for a moment that the province of British Columbia was to be considered as a financial proposition from which it was to be expected Ottawa would eventually draw profits. If you look over the Hansard at the time that this country was coming into confederation you will find that there were men who thought enough of the country to come out and look it over. You will find that it was the idea to make one national country which caused them to bring the province into confederation. If you follow it out, and it is well worth following out, you will find that at that time they looked upon us with tremendous suspicion. They never considered that we would be a paying proposition; they always considered that the country would be a drain instead of being something to draw upon to the benefit of the treasury at Ottawa. But since that time the province of British Columbia has paid into the Dominion treasury the sum of $20,000,000.

Cost of Railways

"But, sir, apart from that what has British Columbia done in order to secure railways? In addition to the federal government receiving $20,000,000 they have also taken from the province a belt of land 40 miles wide, extending from the eastern boundary to tide-water, and mark you, the very land that is the best in the province. That isn't all; come to our own island, the B. & N. railway, some 70 miles long, was built and it cost this province and island some 2,500,000 acres of land. You will, therefore, see that anything we have received is more than balanced by the items to which I have referred.

Mr. Fielding's Stand

"Now, ladies and gentlemen, to mention once again the opinion of the ministers at Ottawa which were to be 'final and unalterable.' Mr. Fielding more than any other man, and he is the minister of public finance, asked us to accept the bill with the words 'final and unalterable' and endeavored to keep us from coming to Ottawa in order that the bill might be passed. Who was the great champion of provincial rights a few years ago? Sir Oliver Mowat, and yet Mr. Fielding presumed to criticize me when I withdrew from the conference in Ottawa. (Loud applause.)

Has Never Talked Secession

"Why at one time he was going to bring in a resolution that if Nova Scotia did not get everything she wanted was going to secede. I have never cried secession, and I never propose to do so. I am too good a Canadian and too good a Britisher. I have too much confidence in our institutions to suggest for a moment that because at the first blush we have not got everything we wanted that we should secede. If I say that I will follow up our attempt to secure our fair and reasonable rights the day is not far distant when we shall secure justice.

Should Carry on Fight

"Since landing in Quebec I have had the matter discussed and the other provinces are now fully aware that it is not a question of this province but a national question as well, and in the days to come it will be more so. The doctrine that I want to impose on you is that this province and the other provinces, must be better treated with regard to domestic affairs. I say that the people of British Columbia that they should legitimately follow up their grievances and we can carry them to Ottawa. I will leave it to the people to be true to themselves, and to support us at the same time looking to our representatives to assist. (Applause.)

Is Not a Party Question

"I say again, ladies and gentlemen, this is not a party question. I am not talking as a Conservative to Conservatives, but as a Canadian to Canadians. When this question next comes before the voters, they in their thousands, will ask what can be expected from Ottawa? If you look through Ottawa news of the efforts of our representatives there will not show much, more especially in the last five years. It is more than interesting to look over the pages of Hansard and see what these wonder-

MYSTERY ATTACHED TO DEATH OF CATTLE

Deputy Minister of Agriculture
Will Investigate Case
at Creston

From eating dynamite or some unknown poisonous weed, eleven cattle are dead on a farm, near Creston, on the Crow's Nest Railway, and the mystery has been reported to the Provincial Agricultural department for solution.

Constable J. Wilson, of Creston, who sent in the report, says opinion of the local experts on the cause of the death of the cattle is divided, some maintaining that it was dynamite and others that it was a strange looking plant that has lately made its appearance on the pasture lands. A specimen of this plant was sent to J. R. Anderson, deputy minister of agriculture, along with the information. Mr. Anderson is not quite certain, but he believes the specimen is the potentilla anserina, a branch of the strawberry family, which is not poisonous. On the other hand, cattle are known to have an appetite for dynamite which has proved fatal in many cases on record.

Mr. Anderson is to leave on Thursday for Kaslo and other points on Kootenay Lake, and has now decided to put Creston, which is only a short distance from Kootenay Landing, on his itinerary, in order that he may investigate the mystery. At Kaslo he will organize a Farmers' Institute for a newly formed district to be known as Kootenay Lake. He will also deliver addresses before various institutes in that part of the province.

Several Bylaws Advanced

A number of bylaws were advanced several stages at last evening's session of the city council. Ald. Gieson's bylaw amending the building inspection bylaw was given its third reading. The bylaw respecting the grading of Washington avenue under the local improvement plan was reconsidered and finally passed. Leave for the introduction of a bylaw providing for the straightening of Cook street was granted. It was read a third time and passed.

The New Grand

A fine bill of eight numbers, all of which are sure to please, opened at the New Grand last night and the usual big Monday night business. The feature is one of the best little sketches that has been seen in the house. It is presented by Miss Beatrice Moreland and Mr. Stanley Johns, and is entitled "Fanning an Husband." Miss Moreland and Mr. Johns are both dramatic performers of far more than the average ability of those seen usually on the vaudeville stage, and the sketch is a delightful bit of domestic comedy that everyone, especially jealous husbands, should see. Cavanna performs some really wonderful feats on the slack wire. Arthur Right, minstrel comedian received an enthusiastic welcome back after an absence of over a year and had to respond to numerous encores. Miss Grace Orma, sings good coon songs and has a bright line of talk, and the Clipper sisters have a neat song and dance turn.

Considerable interest was manifested in the first appearance of Mr. Norman Stanley as singer of illustrated songs, he made good at once and will be a warm favorite while here, judging by his reception last night. His song is entitled "Bonnie Jean" and is rendered in a very pleasing high baritone which is not only strong, but which Mr. Stanley evidently knows how to use to the best advantage. The moving pictures are entitled, "The Burglar is cunning," and "Billard Fever," and Prof. Nagel's orchestra is playing this week by special request, the "William Tell" overtures.

FISHERY EXPERTS TO THE BOARD OF TRADE

Addresses of Professors Prince and Wright on Friday Last

The following is a report of the speeches of Prof. Prince, chairman of the British Columbia fisheries commission, and of Prof. Ramsay Wright at the annual meeting of the board of trade, lack of space having prevented their earlier publication:

The Chairman—It is now much pleasure in calling upon Professor Prince to address you.

Professor Prince—Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen: I wish, in the first place, to say with what pleasure I find myself present with you at your annual meeting today. This is not the first occasion on which I have met the members of the Board of Trade of Victoria; it is so long ago as twelve years since I spoke to the members of your board. And I am looking around the room to see how many faces I can recognize as members of that board. I notice there are many absent faces, felt it a great honor when I was asked to be present here today. But I warn you, gentlemen, that I do not propose to give you a long speech, and I cannot in any way try to emulate the statesmanlike utterances of the minister who has just been speaking.

As most of you are aware, I hold the office, and have for fifteen years, of Commissioner of Fisheries for the Dominion of Canada. As your president has explained, this means that I have some kind of supervision and oversight over the whole of the fisheries of this vast Dominion. I hope I may be permitted saying that I have devoted the whole of my life to this subject, and if any man were qualified to have any supervision of that kind, I felt I was not in some way qualified I should have been a dullard indeed. For my experience has been more varied than probably any other living fishery commissioner. I had an important work to do many years ago on the Fishery Board of Scotland, where I commenced my fishery work. I was then engaged on certain fishery questions in England, and know the whole coast of England and its fisheries. And then the secretary at that time, Mr. Balfour, asked me to take up the investigation of the deep sea fishing grounds and the rivers, which at that time were almost uninvestigated. And now it is my task to try and do something in the way of investigating the fisheries of British Columbia. And it is proposed, and the government propose, to really undertake some survey such as other countries have undertaken; and which would have been undertaken long ago had it not been that our fishery industry as it was, sufficiently occupied us. No man with the knowledge and the opportunity to go further. As a matter of fact, our fisheries cannot be developed until we are ready to develop them. Let me explain. Many years ago I stood before a sister board in Vancouver, and I there urged the importance of some attention being given to deep sea fisheries, and I was assured by members that the salmon fishery was all they had an interest in, and they didn't bother much about the halibut or the herring, or any other kind, that are here, and efforts would be simply wasted upon it. But I felt at the time I was not wasting words in saying that the salmon industry in British Columbia was only one of many of the great industries which were open for the benefit of this province. And I feel, gentlemen, today—I do not claim to be a prophet—but I say many of you sitting here today would be astonished to see the immense development of the fishing industry which today you look upon lightly and as of small account.

Well, I feel then that I have some encouragement in this great task of Dominion Commissioner of Fisheries, at least the extent of which would appear almost incredible. I had the honor and privilege, in Ottawa, of explaining in the course of three or four days, the fishery administration, and detailing the nature of the fishery resources of Canada, to one of the highest officials of the government of India. The Indian government sent out a Hindu gentleman of great ability and culture, a man of extreme refinement, a man delightful to meet, who had been in the Imperial service, sent this gentleman out to Canada to see how we managed our fisheries. And this gentleman, the Honorable Mr. Gupta, told me that our population of Canada was a mere fraction as compared with the three hundred millions of people in India, and yet he said, "You have, as Dominion Commissioner of Fisheries in Canada, a task far exceeding anything that we can ever hope for in India; the extent of your waters, the variety of the fish inhabiting them, is so almost beyond imagination that we can never hope to approach the fisheries of Canada; but we can learn some lessons from you, and we have waters and resources which need development, and need expansion in order to supply our teeming population with additional food."

Well, I feel especially the privilege of addressing this board, because I think in such a board as this—you will excuse me for saying it—we find the brains of the province—we have such a board as this gathered together of men who are guiding the commercial enterprises, and taking a profound interest in all that respects the great resources of this great province. And I feel, therefore, that I can speak boldly, and you will excuse me if sometimes I do speak plainly in my few remarks.

I have often laid down views which have been heartily accepted and heartily approved of by such boards as this; and on other occasions there have arisen differences, and such a board as this has often disapproved of recommendations which emanated from myself. But I have always found from time to time during the last twelve years, that whatever they might think of my recommendations, they have always credited me, and I am pleased to say it, with honesty of intention, and desire to promote the welfare of the industries as a whole. And I assure you, gentlemen, that that has always been before me. And when I have recommended to the government steps which might seem to you at times not quite what you would like, when you come to ponder over the matter, I think you will come to see many of my recommendations are right, and you will feel as they did in Scotland, where I was one of those engaged with a famous authority, Professor McIntosh, in dealing some crucial questions affecting the fisheries of Scotland, and the fishermen and those interested in fisheries almost to a man, disapproved of the views that were taken by parties such as Professor McIntosh and myself, if you go to Scotland today to a man, every one says, Professor McIntosh and Professor Prince are right. It is some satisfaction to find, gentlemen, that after many years, the views changed and experience began to tell. And it is simply impossible that it should be otherwise. Because, though you are practical men, there are phases of fishery questions, which are practical men you cannot thoroughly fathom or grasp, and it requires, as one may see, a special technical training to see the force of some of the features which appear in the fishery matters.

Let me give you one simple illustration: that is on the question of steam trolling—I do not want to weary you but if I may be excused I would like for a moment to give you this illustration. The bottom of the sea is supposed to be the great spawning grounds for all the important fish. The steam trolling which is carried on at Scotland scratches the bottom of the sea, and everybody said this steam trolling must be stopped, because the spawning beds are being destroyed; it was estimated on all hands that the spawn was being dragged from the bottom and destroyed, tons and tons of halibut spawn and of other fishes, was dragged from the bottom of the sea, and the steam troll or bottom troll dragging on the bottom could not affect one egg of the important deep sea fish. This was a very striking example of the way a scientific or technical authority may put practical men right who are busy catching those fish from day to day. It is only fish of a certain variety, herring, that deposited their eggs on the bottom; and not one herring was in danger at all; they were not in danger because none of the eggs of the herring are found on the ground operated over by the steam troll. So that the scientific or professional authority, having the whole thing within its grasp, could settle the matter, and it is of the utmost importance in British Columbia, which is not only the premier province of Canada, but of the whole world, in fisheries, that you should be guided, and your fishery policy developed in accordance with reliable and scientific authority, that you should not rely upon evidence of opinions or views which are not based upon the strictest and most reliable scientific grounds. And I want you, gentlemen, to bear that in mind, for this reason, that there is a tendency to overlook and decide sometimes the scientific man's opinions. And it is a mistake to do so. You must go to the man who is investigating this matter entirely unprejudiced and without any particular object in view excepting the truth. And I therefore lay stress upon this matter before the board today, that the investigation of our fisheries, and all our fisheries, really must be carried on from the basis of exact scientific knowledge.

Well, there is one other point that is cheering to one like myself, and that is, that I have always found the boards of trade and the leading men in our fishing industries in this province are always men in earnest. Now, let me illustrate again. I do not want to draw unfair comparisons, because my words sometimes get on the other side of the Rockies. But the Dominion government at my suggestion, but has been carrying out a scheme which I drew up many years ago, for improving the herring curing industry of Canada. Various schemes were prepared, but my own was this to bring out a staff of women and of men in the Scottish herring business, and to let them go to work here and prove to us that our herring can be put up just as good as the Scottish herring. That was tried in Nova Scotia, before it was tried in British Columbia; and I regret to say that on the whole the Maritime Provinces were not favorable to this scheme; and even now they are rather slow to criticize it. I think, however, what unfairly, the scheme. They say, "We know ourselves, we do not need any instructions from Scotland, we know how to put up herring ourselves." And they do, because they get from two to four or five dollars a barrel, when Scottish herring are selling from eight to twelve. I think, is plain as to what their notion of putting up herring is; they do not put them up in the Scottish way at all. And I feel satisfied that there would be some great enthusiasm from this scheme of improving our curing. But I may say this, in British Columbia, as soon as the scheme was proposed here, a small staff of women were sent to Nanaimo, and all people interested in fisheries, or interested in this matter, said, "Professor Prince, we are going to back you up in this and watch this scheme and try to improve the putting up of herring in British Columbia, and we expect some immense advantages in curing herring with the Scottish method." And that will come, gentlemen. It is merely a matter of slow process, sometimes, you cannot do it all at once. But the market is waiting for the best cured herring. And you in British Columbia, if you do the right way about it, can supply those markets.

Well, I feel that I have talked long enough, and I must draw to a conclusion. (Cries of "Go ahead"). But I dare say there are gentlemen here, I dare say Capt. Tatlow himself, who do not object to a good catch of good herring, or steel-head, and you have the finest sport in British Columbia of this nature, that is to be found anywhere in the world. I have had in British Columbia sport that exceeded—I was going to say five hundred per cent better than I have had in any other country. I am sure you have sporting rights to be looked after. And I feel very much that we have never quite realized this to the proper extent. And when your Premier was talking to me on one occasion about fishing, gave me a little advice; and I followed his advice when he went on his fishing. And I asked him when he came back, "Mr. McBride, what kind of sport did you have?" And he said, "I never had so much sport in my life before." He thought my advice was all right. But when the Governor-General came here, I do not think he asked my advice, nor did Prince Rupert, when he came through; and I never heard that they had such sport as Premier McBride, or the big baskets they might have had if they had come to me.

Mr. Tatlow spoke about the immigration, and I was very much interested to hear what he said about bringing the best class of immigration to the country. And you may think, Mr. Tatlow, that I am speaking egotistically, but I feel as if I had some right to speak on this matter, to say that many years ago I spoke to a number of people of the fishing industries about the desirability of bringing the best class of Scottish fishermen to this Coast, and I said I wanted to see our coasts dotted with fishing towns and settlements of men who could take up salmon fishing at one time and deep sea fishing at another; and it was always regretted that the idea never was in any adequate way carried out. Because I consider that the fishing population, such a population as has been gathered on the Fraser, or the genuine fishing population, is a great strength to any country; they are useful not only as good citizens bringing up good families in our midst, but they are also useful from a protective point of view; they make the best marines and they are accustomed to nautical work. And many countries, France and other countries have always laid stress on that; when you have a native fishing population you have material for a navy. Well, I hope that the scheme of bringing over these herring curers may result in something in the way of establishing little communities of these herring curers. They are a very good class of people. And these girls that were brought over, I think all, who said that they were the finest class of girls that they had ever seen. In fact they were so fine, Mr. Chairman, we brought quite a number of them to Canada, and many of them went back or got married, or got into some other work so that we had no control over them. They became engaged in various

THE TRIBUTE TO MR. McBRIDE

It was fitting that Mr. McBride should be accorded a reception in Victoria of the kind received by him in the Theatre last evening. He has returned from a mission that has a very important significance. The measure of success which he attained is remarkable in view of the difficulties with which he was confronted. He received no assistance, but very determined opposition, not only from Sir Wilfrid Laurier but also from Mr. Fielding, who was in London at the time. Some people have sought to create the impression that Mr. McBride hoped to be able to secure from the Imperial Parliament an amendment to the Bill, which would give this province more money. A little consideration will show that this would have been an unreasonable expectation. While the Imperial Parliament has the power to legislate for the Dominion in any way that it thinks fit, we may feel sure that this power will never be exercised except within certain well-defined limits. It will enact nothing that the Dominion and Provincial Parliaments do not ask for. If it had undertaken to say that, instead of $100,000 a year for 10 years, the Dominion should pay this province some other amount for some other period of time, it would clearly have undertaken to do something, which while within its undoubted jurisdiction, it ought not to think of doing. It would be a glaring case of taxation without representation, and the day for that sort of thing has passed. But while the Imperial Parliament might not undertake such a step as that, neither could it in fairness and equity undertake to pass a law, which should bind for ever any one of the provinces to something to which it had objected. Hence when Mr. McBride appeared, and on behalf of the province protested against the settlement forced upon the province by the Dominion being "final and unalterable," the request was one that could not well have been denied, because to have denied it would have been to deny that a province of Canada as such has any individuality.

Mr. McBride's observations necessarily were not very extended, and there were not many new things which he could say at the present stage. Constitutionally he is bound to report to His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, and after that has been done there may be some matters that can be laid before the people. It is very evident that Mr. McBride's contact with the leading public men of the Empire has been of benefit to him. He is a stronger man than when he left us a couple of months ago. We congratulate him very heartily upon the easy and forceful manner in which he gave such an account of his work as he was at liberty to make at a public meeting at the present time. It was a statesmanlike speech, and one that exhibited mastery of his subject, even though he went only very briefly into details. Some of his points would bear elaborating at considerable length, but we shall have to forego doing so this morning. Special reference will only be made to one of them that bears upon the merits of our claim. Since Confederation, as he pointed out, this province has paid to the Dominion $20,000,000 more than she has received, and in addition has given something like 13,000,000 acres of land, much of it the very peak of the country. If we value this land at $2.00 per acre, it will appear that the Dominion has received from British Columbia in cash or its equivalent $56,000,000 more than British Columbia has received from the Dominion. Certainly we have no reason to appear as mendicants before the government at Ottawa when we ask for consideration.

We were glad that Mr. McBride took occasion to deny that he had the least intention of suggesting under any circumstances that may arise that this province shall secede from Canada. As he said, we are all too good Britishers, all too good Canadians, all too desirous of seeing the Dominion and the Empire consolidated, to wish to make such a suggestion. We will work along constitutional lines, confident that in this way justice will be secured.

Mr. McBride's references to the several gentlemen, whose conduct in connection with the subject matter of his mission was proper to be discussed, were in excellent taste, and we think that in speaking of those who opposed him and those from whom he might have expected, but did not receive, assistance he was exceedingly moderate. The Colonist has never been able to understand what reason could be advanced on behalf of our representatives in the House of Commons in justification of their conspicuous silence on this question of better terms, and Mr. McBride was quite right in saying that when next an opportunity offers for an expression of opinion on this subject the people of British Columbia will expect their representatives to give a better account of themselves than can be found in the pages of Hansard. To say this is not to introduce politics into the discussion of a subject, which has, as far as the provincial government has been able, been treated in a non-partisan way. The inaction of our representatives is a part of what lawyers call the res gestae, and it cannot be overlooked even in the most non-partisan review of the case. The reference made by the Premier to Mr. Winston Churchill was very kindly, and it has all the more merit seeing that Mr. Churchill is a member of a political party, with which Mr. McBride could not be expected to have very much sympathy. Mr. Churchill's conduct shows him to be possessed of breadth of mind, and a very excellent appreciation of the relations of the provinces of Canada to the Dominion and to the Imperial Parliament.

In respect to the report that came from London last week to the effect that the Bill would be amended in the House of Lords, and the objectionable words be restored, we must decline to credit this until we have better proof than now before us. Mr. McBride received strong assurances of a kind that cannot be called in question, to the effect that these would be struck out, and it is difficult to believe that the British government will not keep faith with him, even though Sir Wilfrid Laurier may employ all his great influence to induce them to depart from their undertakings.

WHAT WILL HE DO?

The Times would like to have Mr. McBride tell it what he proposes to do, now that he has secured an open door for the presentation of our claims. It can hardly be necessary to ask such a question. The answer is obvious. It is that he will continue to press the claims of the province until a measure of justice has been secured. But our contemporary says that he is in exactly the same position as he was before the inter-provincial Conference, except that the province will receive certain additional grants. This is quite true. May we ask the Times in what better position Mr. McBride could hope to be? Mr. McBride knew just as well as our contemporary that the consideration which British Columbia would receive would have to be adjusted with the Dominion government. He never had any expectation that it would be adjusted in any other way. What he objected to was that it should have to be adjusted with the other provinces, and that what this province received should be settled by a vote of the provincial premiers.

We gather from what our contemporary says that it thinks conditions will never change at Ottawa, and that the deaf ear will always be turned to British Columbia. It is of course at liberty to hold such a view, if it thinks best, but we venture to believe, that even if Sir Wilfrid Laurier remains in power for the rest of his natural life, he will not always refuse to do as justice. We have a better opinion of him than the paper owned by his Minister of Inland Revenue appears to have. We believe that neither he nor the Liberal party will continue to refuse just consideration to our claims. But even if they are so disposed, there may some day or other be a party in power which will be more favorable; rather let us say, that will not be tied hand and foot to Quebec.

May we ask our contemporary a question? Seeing that it is the intention of the Premier to continue to press for justice, what attitude does it propose to take towards the claims of the province? Does it intend to persist that full justice has been done? Does it propose to oppose any effort to secure something like what the members of its own party in the provincial house think the province ought to receive? We do not know that it makes very much difference one way or the other, so far as the ultimate result of the pressure is concerned, but it would be of some interest to know just what the Times is going to do. Every Liberal public man, who has spoken on the subject, has asked that the continued pressure of the demands of the province shall not be made a party question. Does our contemporary propose that it shall be? The Colonist does not care very much what the answer to this question may be, but it knows that Liberal aspirants to seats in the next legislature would be very glad to know if they are going to be handicapped by its opposition to better terms.

AN UNFOUNDED CHARGE

In a local article of decided editorial flavor last evening, the Times expresses its opinion that Captain Tatlow will find it difficult to free himself from a charge of cowardice in connection with his arrangement with the Salvation Army to bring immigrants to this province. It says that the arrangement ought to have been announced to the legislature. If the Times had taken the trouble to ascertain the facts, it would have learned that the bargain was made with the Army not more than four weeks ago, and therefore long after the legislature had been prorogued. It does not profess to criticize the bargain, but says that the legislature should have been consulted as to its details. There was no responsibility upon the government to consult the legislature, although as a matter of fact it could not have done so, if it had so desired. An appropriation was made by the legislature to be expended by the government in promoting immigration. It was asked as a general vote, and the presumption was that the government would expend it according to the best of its judgment. Does the Times suggest that, because the government had been unable to devise any satisfactory plan before the house rose, the grant ought to have been allowed to lapse? If it does, it is hopelessly ignorant of the practices of responsible government. It insists on having from the provincial government something that the Dominion government never thinks of conceding, namely, that before it asks for a grant in any case it shall bring down the details as to how the grant shall be expended. No such rule obtains in any representative assembly in the British Empire. Grants of money are made, and these grants are administered by the government as to details according to the best of its ability.

The Times says that few people will not believe that the negotiations with the Salvation Army could not have been concluded during the session of the House. The Colonist has Captain Tatlow's assurance that they could not have been so concluded, and in fact that they could not be concluded until Mr. Coombs, representing the Army, was able to come out to British Columbia. We fancy that the public will accept Captain Tatlow's assurance in preference to the unwarranted insinuations of the Times.

ALL-RED ROUTE

A London despatch to the Manitoba Free Press announces that a subsidy of £450,000 to be paid jointly by Great Britain and Canada is to be given to the "All-Red" route across the Atlantic. This, if correct, will leave the Pacific part of the project unprovided for. We hope that the report is true, because if one part on the route is established, the other certainly will be.

The importance of this proposal to the Empire cannot well be overstated. Canada is growing in wealth and importance; Australia will soon come into its own, and New Zealand is progressing with great strides. For the present Imperial preference seems out of the question. We can hardly hope to appreciate in this country the attitude of the British people towards colonial relations, and we must possess our souls in patience for a long time if we expect to see the Empire consolidated by any tariff arrangements. Even the advent of the Conservative Party to power in England might not produce the results which some people expect, because colonial questions do not as yet loom up very large before the public eye in that country. We must for the present be content with such closer relations as can be brought about by other means, and we think we see in the proposal to establish such an inter-imperial transportation project as has been suggested a means whereby the Empire can be drawn more closely together.

We have been asked to publish a protest against the Tees stopping at Sechart to take on the products of the whaling station. This does not seem a reasonable request. A great deal of pressure was brought to bear upon the Canadian Pacific railway to get them to put the Tees on the route, and one of the arguments employed was that the whaling station would afford a large amount of freight. It is, of course, not very pleasant to be detained at Sechart while fertilizer and whale oil is being taken aboard, but it seems to us as if this is an unavoidable feature in the development of West Coast transportation. We have no doubt that as soon as possible this practice will be stopped.

Mr. Arthur V. Kenah writes us a letter about a nuisance inseparable from board sidewalks, but one which ought to be remedied as far as possible, namely, that of projecting nails. A case was once reported to the Colonist of a young lady, a stranger dressed in very pretty garments, around the lower edge of which there was a lot of lace, who was so unfortunate as to have the latter catch on a projecting sidewalk nail. The result was disaster, and if the garment had not been well secured in place, it might have been humiliating. This matter of nails is another one of the things to which the occupiers of premises might well give a little attention. No matter how vigilant the city authorities may be, it is impossible to prevent nails from working loose; but there is no reason in the world why a citizen should not see to it that in front of the premises occupied by him the nails are driven in, and it would not be bad citizenship if he would take an occasional look over any adjacent sidewalk that may happen to be in front of vacant property. Citizenship imposes certain duties, and this, we think, is one of them.

SPIRIT OF THE PRESS

A United People
We do not think that anyone who took part last evening in the welcome to Mr. McBride, either in New Westminster or Vancouver, can have any doubt as to the sentiment prevailing in British Columbia on the subject of better terms. Party differences or divisions were ignored by the people in both these large and enthusiastic gatherings, and every word that Mr. McBride spoke in reference to the subject elicited hearty and sympathetic support from the crowd. It must be a source of much satisfaction to Mr. McBride to receive such welcomes as he met with last evening in the two chief mainland towns. As he said in his reply to the Mayor's address, the knowledge that he had the people of British Columbia as a whole behind him gave him confidence and determination to press on the Imperial authorities the justice and reasonableness of the Provincial contention that no province should be taken by the British Parliament which would close the opportunity to obtain the desired relief.

The people of Victoria intend to give

Mr. McBride a hearty welcome to-morrow. Whatever differences of opinion may exist between the Island and the Mainland on certain lines of policy, there is no doubt that they are one on this question of Better Terms. The government can rely on the solid support of the legislature, and such incidents as those of yesterday show that popular opinion of this matter is accurately represented by the resolution on the subject that was passed at the last session of the House. Outside the range of party politics the question is one on which public opinion is unanimous without regard to party affiliations. —Vancouver News-Advertiser.

May Enter Dominion Politics

Men of pre-eminent ability are scarce and this is particularly true in the field of statesmanship. When a man of such ability in this country shows that he is gifted with the ability to lead on great public questions, who is versed in the arts of government and who has political ability in the best sense of the word, that he is so gifted, there is a demand for his services. In this country at first the services of such a public man are demanded by the province. If he is of large mental stature and personality and has more than ordinary ability he finally outgrows the needs of the province and there comes an insistent demand for him to enter the service of the Dominion, which he can scarcely refuse to do. There is an insistent demand in order that its large and important affairs may be properly and wisely looked after.

No one who knows Hon. Richard McBride, premier of this province, doubts that he is a man of conspicuous ability, a fearless leader of men with political ability in the best sense of the word, he is a statesman and of large calibre. Indeed, it seems to us that he stands head and shoulders above any other public man in this province.

There was a quick recognition of his ability in London, where he won a victory in the better terms matter over that past master of political diplomacy, Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

While his friends in this province, and they include a large majority of the electorate, recognize that he can be of great service to them at home they feel that the time is coming, if it has not already arrived, when he can serve this province and the rest of the Dominion to greater advantage by entering Dominion politics. No doubt they have their eyes on a large goal for him in the not very remote future, for it is evident that he will be able to, when he is better known by all the people of Canada, fill a more important position in Federal politics as he at present occupies in the political affairs of this province. It is said that the proposal is that Premier McBride run against Mr. Thompson in Victoria and defeat him, which, it is thought, can be easily accomplished. Then he would be fairly launched in Federal politics and may be relied upon in time to reach the position which his abilities entitle him to. There is no doubt in the event of the plan being carried out that he would ultimately reach a very high goal. —Rossland Miner.

British Columbia's Mines.

The annual report of the provincial department of mines is a document of no inconsiderable interest as reflecting the progress of the premier industry of British Columbia. The report for the year 1906 shows that the province will be as valuable as any of its predecessors in giving accurate information on the mineral resources of the province, and serving the public interest in those who are now interested, or intending to become interested in mining enterprises in British Columbia. The importance of mining to the industrial and commercial development of the province may be realized from the fact that in the fifty years of its existence the value of its mineral product has reached the large sum of $273,000,000. But even these figures do not accurately indicate the importance of the industry to the province at the present time. After the first excitement caused by the discovery of gold on the Fraser river had waned, and the profitable working of the mines had ceased, mining gradually dwindled so that during the seventies and eighties the industry had shrunk to very small proportions. Coal continued to be mined on Vancouver Island but it was not until the middle of the ninth decade of the last century that the revival of the mining industry in this province really commenced with the exploitation of the quartz veins in the Kootenay district. Since that progress has been continuous and steady with the really large output of ore now being had and chiefly in the Kootenay and Boundary districts. The result is that British Columbia leads all the other provinces in the Dominion in the annual value of her mineral product and this is likely to increase that lead with every year that passes.

The rapid growth of the industry in recent years may be concisely shown by a few figures. In 1896 a period just previous to the commencement of exploitation of our quartz lodes, the total value of our mineral production was $2,500,000. In 1900, ten years later, this had grown to $16,300,000, while last year the value was $23,350,000, the greatest yet reached. The value of the mineral productions of all the other provinces combined for the year 1906 was a little over $31,000,000; the preminence of British Columbia as a mineral producer is, therefore, clearly shown. From the developments now taking place and the larger operations under contemplation by some of the most important of the companies engaged in mining and smelting, there seems to be every probability that within the next few years the present value of the output will be largely increased.

Nearly all the minerals known in commerce are found in British Columbia in quantities more or less abundant. When it is remembered that mining with modern appliances, and conducted on scientific lines, has only been carried on here for about ten years, and that but an inconsiderable area in the province has been even casually prospected, it will be seen how impossible it is to place any limits to the proportions that the industry may attain in the course of the next ten years. Districts in which no mining is now carried on will probably become important contributors to the annual production of mineral wealth, while the older districts will steadily increase their output. Thus, while it is known that valuable deposits of iron ore exist within the provincial boundaries, it has not yet been attempted to develop them. The value of the output is insignificant. But there will be a change in this before long.

In the output for 1906 copper leads in the value of production, it being set down as $28,280,000. Gold comes next with a value of $5,573,000. Coal and coke were produced to the value of $5,548,000, lead coming next with a value of $2,667,000. Silver follows to the amount of $1,987,000, with other metals and minerals about $1,000,000. Taking the production by districts, the first place is held by Yale, on account of the immense output of the Boundary Creek and adjacent districts. The aggregate production being $7,779,000. The coast and East Kootenay districts follow, with productions about the order of $2,000,000 each. The large output of coal in these regions being the principal cause of the large values reached by them. Then comes the Kootenay with its iron, copper and metalliferous mines in the Rossland, Nelson and Slocan districts. Cassiar and Cariboo between them contribute about a million dollars each. Lower Columbia has alluvial gold. There is every probability that the gold production of these two districts will be doubled or possibly tripled within the next year or two, as the result of large extensions of their operations by companies now mining there.

Unless hampered by adverse conditions, such as shortage of labor, there is every reason to believe that the increase in the production of our mineral wealth will go on with greater rapidity than in the past. Improvements in transportation reduce the cost of mining, and the cost of the treatment of the ores is also being considerably lowered. Improved methods so that low grade ores, valueless a few years ago, can now be handled at a profit. More and more the progress of the province has become dependent on the progress of its mining industry, and the outlook for the latter is certainly bright at the present time. —Vancouver News-Advertiser.

THREE HUNDRED VISITORS ARRIVE

Large Parties from Sound Cities Came to Assist in the Organization

A branch of the Knights of Columbus, an order whose membership includes many of the leading laymen of the Roman Catholic church in America, was formed in Victoria on Sunday, over 300 members of the order from the various sound cities coming to assist in the organization work. The
A. O. U. W. Hall had been secured for the day by the local committee and there the meetings were held. The Victoria branch of the order was started off with a good membership and
with every other promise of success.

The order of the Knights of Columbus was established in the eastern states years ago and its membership
now numbers almost 200,000, spread over the United States, Canada and Mexico. It is in every word a fraternal order, the insurance of its members being provided for, while the cultivation of social relations amongst its members is one of its chief objects. Other objects of the order are to develop charity, brotherhood, patriotism, good citizenship, regular churchmanship and mutual assistance
of one another.

The movement for the establishment of a branch of the order in Victoria has been under way for some time and a charter list of 75 was in readiness for initiation Sunday. All were put through the first, second and third degrees of the order. The work missionaries see that the regulations are complied with before the licenses are
renewed for the ensuing six months is thereby rendered of no effect.

The session was not the lengthy one expected. Interest in the proceedings
was great and when the court assembled and Mayor Morley, followed
by W. Mackay Ross and Joseph E.
Phillips, the two other commissioners,
entered the courtroom and took his
place on the bench, there were over
a hundred people present, largely composed of license holders, and the owners of licensed premises, while around
the counsel table sat a large array of
legal talent, including City Solicitor
Mann, representing the city; Frank
Higgins and A. E. McPhillips, the
spokesmen of the license holders and
owners of licensed properties respectively, and others representing individual interests.

The mayor suggested that the court
proceed to business. He called upon
City Solicitor Mann to state the
city's position with regard to the new
license regulations, which that gentleman proceeded to do.

The present, he said, was the first
time that any attempt had been made
to interfere with the mode in which
the statutes dealt with the liquor
trade. The council had arrived at the conclusion that certain restrictions
should be placed upon it. It had been necessary for them in pursuit of
this determination to become acquainted with the mode in which the various
licensed premises were being conducted
and accordingly the chief of police and
the clerk of the court had been instructed to visit the various premises
and to report upon them. It had
appeared as a result of that inspection that a somewhat anomalous condition existed. There were many premises conducted under hotel licenses which were really saloons. No
distinction was made between hotel
and saloon licenses.

In 1892 the statute was amended and
an hotel license was for premises having thirty rooms or more. This distinction was, however, never observed
in Victoria. Although authorized to do so no regulation was passed by the council. Many premises which would permit of the holders qualifying under
the regulation had permitted their
rooms to fall into disuse and if it was intended to use these saloons it would
be necessary for them to comply with
the regulations for saloons.

With regard to the other regulations,
the council had instructed him to in-
form the board that unless there was
a distinct feeling that contumacy existed they desired that the renewals
asked for be granted. The mayor
had in his possession a list of all saloons which have already complied
with the regulations and of a great
many more which are complying.

He drew attention to one clause
of the Municipal Clauses act which
states that "if a license is granted,
transferred or renewed contrary to the provisions of the act or of any by-
law passed under its authority, such
license shall be ipso facto, null and void."

He desired to say in effect that unless such infraction was with the
law he had no desire to impose the penalty.
Mr. Mann then read the original
copy of the bylaw with the clerk
of the board and the chief of police.

At this juncture, Mr. Higgins rose
to object to the proceedings as null
and void. He called for the renewal
of the licenses under section one of the
bylaw, which he read as follows:

"From and after the 2nd day of June, 1907, all licenses issued in the city of Victoria, whether new or renewals shall be issued by the city
treasurer upon the order of the board
and all licenses so issued shall be
held subject to the regulations herein
contained."

There was only one course of action
for the board to pursue and that was
to order the issuing of the licenses
forthwith. It was true that every
license holder in the city had received
a notice regarding "a clear view of the
premises from the street, etc." but this
notice had no bearing on the case.

This notice was issued under section
3 of the bylaw, which states:
"Upon information had of any in-
fraction of the regulations herein contained by any holder of a retail liquor
license, any license commissioner or
the board may, and at the request of
the council by resolution, the board
shall cause at least seven days' previous notice in writing to be sent to the
holder complained of, requiring him
to attend the next regular court of
licensing commissioners and there
make application for an order or renewal."

The responses to the various notices
were bright and to the point and one
and all thoroughly appreciated by the
gathering. About 11.30 p. m. the visitors left the hall, marched to the
outer wharf where their vessel was
waiting to convey them back to their homes.

Counsel for License Holders Says Procedure of the Licensing Board
Was Irregular

A renewal of all restaurant, hotel,
saloon, shop or bottle licenses was authorized at the session of the license
commissioners yesterday afternoon,
and as a result already between sixty
and seventy of the seventy-seven licenses in all have been renewed, the city treasurer accepting the fees. Thereby a victory was secured for the license holders. No question as to whether the penalties had complied with the new regulations was raised, but the renewals were granted in accordance with a blanket resolution
moved by Commissioner Phillips, seconded by Commissioner Ross and carried by them with Mayor Morley dissenting. The license holders are confident in their licenses for another six months.

The above proceedings does not invalidate the new License Regulation Bylaw recently passed by the council,
but it prevents the board of commissioners enforcing the penalty imposed by
that measure for non-compliance
with the new regulations as to premises. This is the refusal to renew.
Infractions of the bylaw will continue to be reported to them, but all that the present board can do is to recommend to the incoming board that it do not renew the licenses at the session to be held the second Tuesday in January.

The order of the council that the commissioners see that the regulations are
complied with before the licenses are
renewed for the ensuing six months is thereby rendered of no effect. The session was not the lengthy one
expected. Interest in the proceedings
was great and when the court assembled and Mayor Morley, followed
by W. Mackay Ross and Joseph E.
Phillips, the two other commissioners,
entered the courtroom and took his
place on the bench, there were over
a hundred people present, largely composed of license holders, and the own-
ers of licensed premises, while around
the counsel table sat a large array of
legal talent, including City Solicitor
Mann, representing the city; Frank
Higgins and A. E. McPhillips, the
spokesmen of the license holders and
owners of licensed properties respec-
tively, and others representing individual interests.

The mayor suggested that the court
proceed to business. He called upon
City Solicitor Mann to state the
city's position with regard to the new
license regulations, which that gentleman proceeded to do.

The present, he said, was the first
time that any attempt had been made
to interfere with the mode in which
the statutes dealt with the liquor
trade. The council had arrived at the conclusion that certain restrictions
should be placed upon it. It had
been necessary for them in pursuit of
this determination to become acquaint-
ed with the mode in which the various
licensed premises were being conducted
and accordingly the chief of police and
the clerk of the court had been instructed to visit the various premises
and to report upon them. It had
appeared as a result of that inspection that a somewhat anomalous condition existed. There were many
premises conducted under hotel licenses which were really saloons. No
distinction was made between hotel
and saloon licenses.

In 1892 the statute was amended and
an hotel license was for premises having thirty rooms or more. This distinction was, however, never observed
in Victoria. Although authorized to
do so no regulation was passed by the council. Many premises which would
permit of the holders qualifying under
the regulation had permitted their
rooms to fall into disuse and if it was
intended to use these saloons it would
be necessary for them to comply with
the regulations for saloons.

With regard to the other regulations,
the council had instructed him to in-
form the board that unless there was
a distinct feeling that contumacy existed they desired that the renewals
asked for be granted. The mayor
had in his possession a list of all sa-
loons which have already complied
with the regulations and of a great
many more which are complying.

He drew attention to one clause
of the Municipal Clauses act which
states that "if a license is granted,
transferred or renewed contrary to the
provisions of the act or of any by-
law passed under its authority, such
license shall be ipso facto, null and void."

He desired to say in effect that un-
less such infraction was with the
law he had no desire to impose the penalty.
Mr. Mann then read the original
copy of the bylaw with the clerk
of the board and the chief of police.

At this juncture, Mr. Higgins rose
to object to the proceedings as null
and void. He called for the renewal
of the licenses under section one of the
bylaw, which he read as follows:

"From and after the 2nd day of June, 1907, all licenses issued in the
city of Victoria, whether new or re-
newals shall be issued by the city
treasurer upon the order of the board
and all licenses so issued shall be
held subject to the regulations herein
contained."

There was only one course of action
for the board to pursue and that was
to order the issuing of the licenses
forthwith. It was true that every
license holder in the city had received
a notice regarding "a clear view of the
premises from the street, etc." but this
notice had no bearing on the case.

This notice was issued under section
3 of the bylaw, which states:
"Upon information had of any in-
fraction of the regulations herein contained by any holder of a retail liquor
license, any license commissioner or
the board may, and at the request of
the council by resolution, the board
shall cause at least seven days' previous notice in writing to be sent to the
holder complained of, requiring him
to attend the next regular court of
licensing commissioners and there
make application for an order or renewal."

The responses to the various notices
were bright and to the point and one
and all thoroughly appreciated by the
gathering. About 11.30 p. m. the visitors left the hall, marched to the
outer wharf where their vessel was
waiting to convey them back to their
homes.

renewal of his license on the expiry
thereof."

It was therefore explicit, he stated that the notice referred to could not be issued until the information
necessary was before the commissioners as a board. The notice was issued merely in conformity with a resolution adopted June 12. The notices were not signed by a commissioner
or the chairman as called for by the statute. Moreover, and this was Mr.
Higgins' crowning point, the bylaw
stated that notices must be replied to by appearance at the next regular sitting of the board. The present sitting of the board was not a regular sitting.
It was merely a continued meeting
and hence could only continue the consideration of matters introduced
and considered at the previous session.

Mr. Higgins then stated that there was no disposition on the part of the license holders to evade the law. He read an interview with the mayor
published in the Colonist of the previous Friday in which that gentleman commended the license holders for the spirit they exhibited.

At this juncture Commissioner
Phillips, who had been stirring uneasy in his seat for some minutes, offered a motion. With little preliminary he announced that he would move the following motion: "That this board grant the renewal of all restaurant, hotel shop or bottle licenses and that the city treasurer be instructed to issue the same forthwith giving a further opportunity to all to comply with the general regulations,
the chief of police to report at the next regular meeting of the board any breach of the regulations."

Commissioner Ross: "I second the motion."

Mayor Morley took exception to the adoption of the resolution. It was opposed to the action of the board
suggested by the city solicitor on behalf of the council. He doubted if the board could pass a blanket resolution.
The board were there to see that the regulations enacted by the council were carried into effect in a reasonable spirit. It was the city's intention to deal generously and liberally with the license holders and property owners.
It was necessary to change the list for
the name of the list was mixed,
the names of license holders were also mixed. Even Mr. Higgins would not take exception to the proposal to amend the list.

Mr. Higgins: "You are prohibited from dealing with this matter at all
as you have not complied with the law."

Mr. McPhillips rose and addressed the court. He followed the lines pursued by Mr. Higgins. The present court was not properly seized of the matter. The notices were not returnable until the September session of the court. He urged the importance of the board accepting this view of the proceedings especially as the matter was sub-judice at present.

The mayor applied to Mr. Mann as to his opinion as to whether he should put the resolution of Commissioner Phillips.

Mr. Mann advised the mayor to put the resolution, though he held that the court was properly seized of the matter.

The mayor prepared to do so. Before doing so he inadvertently to the clause quoted by Mr. Mann in his opening remarks and to the fact that the license holders might ultimately lose their license as a result.

Mr. Higgins informed the court that they were prepared to run the risk.
The motion was put and passed, the mayor dissenting.

The resolution was signed and
ordered sent to the city treasurer.
There was a murmur of delight from the license holders at the back of the hall who filed out and into the city
treasurer's office to pay their fees.
The treasurer appeared in court for a moment and received verbal instructions to issue the licenses as previously.

The court then proceeded to ordinary routine business.

The transfer of licenses for the Regent and Avenue Theatre Saloon to Catherine Meldrum was authorized.
They were formerly held by the late husband, J. W. Meldrum. The transfer of the Bodega Saloon to T. A. and
C. M. McDowell and the Vernon (Carlton Saloon) to R. P. Clarke were granted. A temporary permit for the Victoria Hotel bar was granted. The temporary permit for the Elk Saloon to A. R. McDonald was confirmed as was the transfer of the license for the Commercial Hotel from T. A. Mc-Dowell to Samuel Shore.

The board then adjourned.

half a dozen offenders on Monday

day, there being only one law breaker presented. He was accused of creating a disturbance by being drunk on the street, and this being his first offence he was allowed to go on payment of a fine of $3.50.

TAX RATE SAME AS LAST YEAR

Owing to Increased Assessment Amount Realized Will Be Larger

COUNCIL DEALS WITH ROUTINE

Many Matters Came Before the City Council at Last Evening's Session.

The session of the city council last evening was a lengthy one. In addition to several matters over which discussion waxed warm there were a number of matters of routine business, all of which took up considerable time. The fixing of the new civic rate of taxation did not occupy as much time as expected. Mayor Morley made the proposal that the tax on improved property be reduced and that on land increased and the proposal was carried with three of the mayor's fellow-aldermen, Aldermen Fullerton, Gleason, and Weston. The balance of the council could not see their way clear to do this, fearing that it would discourage the influx of outside investors which has resulted in the present activity of real estate in the city. So the rate will remain the same as last year, namely twenty-four mills. The City Auditor, James L. Raymur, had submitted an estimate around which there hung no little mystery. Each of the aldermen were provided with a copy of it and allusions to it were vague. The mayor after first requesting the reporters to present to make no use of it, made assurance doubly sure, by requesting the aldermen to refuse the press access to their several copies on the ground that the city auditor so desired. It would only lead to unnecessary discussion moreover.

After the distribution of the papers, Mayor Morley broached his proposition. He thought that the rate on improvements should be decreased and the amount raised by the taxation of land increased. It would, he stated, encourage improvements and discourage the holding of large areas of land for speculative purposes. The city would thereby be benefited materially.

Ald. Vincent: "We are getting people to come here to buy our lands. That is what is making things go ahead at present. Such action as the mayor suggests will place a check upon this."

Ald. Fullerton hailed the proposal with joy. He himself was a "single-taxer" and he was pleased to see the council coming around to his view. In this matter Nanaimo was a long way ahead of Victoria. It did not tax improvements at all. He moved that the tax for the ensuing year be twenty-seven mills on land and twenty-three on improvements.

Ald. Weston was in favor of the proposal. It would induce holders of large areas to waste and unimproved land in the centre of the city to sell. Ald. Hall did not favor the proposal. He moved, seconded by Ald. Vincent that the rate be the same as the previous year.

With the amendment Ald. Verinder agreed. He did not think the time opportune to make the change. The assessed value of land had been greatly increased, in all by nearly three millions, while the assessment of improved property had remained virtually the same. He was supported by Ald. Henderson.

The vote was then taken, Ald. Fullerton calling for the yeas and nays. It was as follows:

For the assessment (that the rate remain the same as last year): Aldermen Vincent, Hall, Hanna, Henderson, Verinder, Ross.

Against the amendment: Aldermen Fullerton, Gleason, and Weston. The amendment was declared carried.

The estimated revenue for the ensuing year is about $356,623, an increase of $64,400 over that of last year.

The estimated expenditure provides for a number of additional items including $15,000 for the filling of the mud flats, $2,500 for the public hospital and $1,500 for the anti-tuberculosis sanitarium.

A letter was received from E. M. Johnson, agent for certain tenants and property owners on Humboldt street, regarding an alleged nuisance there. The letter in part was as follows:

"On the city property lying to the south of Humboldt street and east of Douglas, near the Reformed church, is a mass of decomposing accumulations. (Exactitude of description is not essential, any one can find it if they approach the locality). Therefrom arises an effluvia mixture of a minimum of oxygen and a maximum of microbes, which makes a good strong disease breeding stench, a medium of infection, and a nuisance to the public health. I ask on behalf of those interested attention to and remedy for this complaint with all convenient speed; and no threat or intimidation can be inferred if I say in case of neglect or refusal to remove a state of things which may result in public calamity, proper steps must be taken to enforce compliance and procure remedial measures."

The letter provoked some amusement among the members of the council. Ald. Verinder drew attention to the fact that the note could not be trusted to make such an analysis of the effluvia emanating from the nuisance in question and that the membrane of the nose could not be trusted to tell of the presence of bacteria. He concurred in the opinion that there was need for action. With this Ald. Gleason also concurred. He hoped that the complainant in question would also place his own property in order.

Ald. Henderson stated that the letter drew attention to a matter which had already been considered by the council. They had sought a solution of the problem and the best proposal had been the building of an incinerator. The proprietors had opposed this and he was confident that Mr. Johnson had been one of the number. When they would do he did not know. Some action would have to be taken. Ald. Vincent stated that the trouble was that wet sewage was dumped there. The engineer had been instructed not to allow this. The practice still persisted. The mayor suggested that the matter should be referred to the streets, bridges and sewers committee. It had been proposed to purchase a scow to convey the sewage out to sea, but this would cost money which the council did not have. The engineer was to report upon the cost of placing the scow owned by the city in condition for the work. The matter was referred to the streets, bridges and sewers committee to deal with.

A letter was received from James Star on behalf of the board of management of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church. The letter alleged that the practice of a transfer company in allowing rigs to remain on Broughton street opposite the church constituted a nuisance. The matter was referred to the police commissioners to investigate.

S. A. Berryman wrote asking for the renewal of his grocery store license. The matter was referred to the city treasurer.

A letter was received from the water commissioner stating that 800 feet of pipe was necessary at the present time for laying water mains. The matter was referred to the city purchasing agent to advertise for tenders.

In this connection the mayor announced that he would shortly bring before the council a plan for the purchase of the pipe necessary for the redistribution of water in the city.

It would be cheaper and he thought that it would meet with the approval of the property holders at the present time. It would in the end result in unnecessary delay if they waited until all the plans for the new system were brought before them.

It would be perhaps November before a judgment would be received in the water case and so much time would be lost.

Ald. Fullerton saw in the proposal the danger of the city being inundated with foreign labor. He did not think that the citizens were prepared to endorse any half measure. He thought the council should wait until a comprehensive plan was evolved.

The matter was then dropped. A communication was received from Hon. J. S. H. McKenna calling the attention of the council to the fact that the installation of certain gas mains along the park side of Haywood avenue was contrary to the regulations governing the park. The letter was referred to the park board to report upon.

A letter was received from Sydney C. Thomson, regarding the surface drain nuisance on the Fernwood road. He had received a letter from the corporation officials stating that this nuisance which proved a menace to the health of the community, had been temporarily abated but personal inspection had resulted in his finding that this was not the case. He further stated that in the event of the city not taking action he would take steps to secure an abatement.

The city engineer stated that he had given instructions to repair the drain. He thought it was done. The matter was referred to the city engineer with power to act.

F. H. Eaton, M.A., LL.D., on behalf of the board of school trustees, wrote asking the extension of the proposed permanent school on School street in front of the Central school, to Yates street. The letter was received and laid on the table pending the receipt of the report of the streets, bridges and sewers committee, when the recommendation was adopted.

Mr. C. E. Munro called attention to a table which had been placed on or very near the street line opposite her residence on the Selkirk road by the Taylor-Pattison Mill Co. She asked that the council enforce the by-law governing the case. Referred to building inspector for report.

turret guns floated back to the turret through a gun port and settled on the powder cases. The other is that a spark came from a smokestack of the ship and floated through the gun ports.

A message from Rear-Admiral Goodrich in the afternoon requested hourly bulletins on the condition of his son, and they were sent to various points along the railroad line, to be delivered to him on the train as he hurried toward Boston, where he was due at 10 o'clock tonight.

As soon as the men had been made as comfortable as possible those who were able to talk told something of the harrowing experience they had been through, and nearly all the facts regarding the explosion soon became known. Three of the dead were burned beyond recognition. Soon after the men had reached the ward it was seen that Lieut. Goodrich, Fair, Walsh and Thomas had but a short time to live. Lieut. Goodrich was barely alive at 6.30 o'clock, but he rallied enough to give the surgeons hope that his father would be in time to see him alive. Thomas was suffering fearfully and begged piteously that he might live, but the doctors did not believe that he would last through the night.

Several incidents of heroism just after the explosion were related. Chaplain Charles Charlton, the first officer to reach the turret, found Midshipman Cruise in agony, but he would not allow the chaplain to do anything for him. "Let me alone, I am all right," he said. In one or two other cases he met with the same spirit of self-sacrifice.

Wm. F. Fair, ordinary seaman, of Brooklyn, died at the hospital tonight. Lieut. Goodrich died at 11.40.

LICENSE QUESTION UP AT COUNCIL MEETING

Warm Discussion Over Action of License Commissioners Yesterday

The defeat of the mayor's plan for the immediate enforcement of the liquor regulation bylaw through the action of the majority at the session of the board of license commissioners yesterday afternoon had its reflection at the session of the city council last evening. It was a stormy reflection also, for, in the course of the debate which arose, the mayor stigmatized his two brother commissioners as political appointees and referred to them in such a manner that he aroused the wrath of Ald. Hanna. The latter while disclaiming all affinity with the present party in power and assenting that he had cast a good Liberal vote at the last election, still called upon the chief magistrate to apologise for his language concerning them. He expressed his regret that the language used could not be accredited to the city's magistrate in the daily papers the following day.

Ald. Ross, who was one of the two commissioners, defended his course of action and he was commended for it by Aldermen Henderson and Vincent.

It was on the whole a most interesting debate. Ald. Fullerton glibly at the resolution adopted by the commissioners and affirmed it had been prepared for them by the "whisky interests." Ald. Gleason affirmed that he had been told that one of the license commissioners had gone from license holder to license holder advising them not to comply with the regulations of the bylaw. Finally a resolution prepared in advance by Ald. Gleason was allowed to remain over until the following week pending a statement from the city solicitors as to the council's rights in the matter.

The matter was then introduced by a written communication from Mayor Morley. It was as follows:

To the Board of Aldermen: Gentlemen.—I beg to report that I today sat as chairman of the Board of Licensing Commissioners, together with Commissioners Phillips & Ross, and City Solicitor having shortly mentioned the altered state of the law as affected by the Liquor License Regulation by-law, Mr. Higgins and Mr. McPhillips having made certain representations, without calling upon me or hearing anything that I had to say or entertaining any application, Commissioner Phillips produced a written resolution which he moved, ordering directing the report to be made at the next regular sitting. This resolution was seconded by Aldermen Ross and Hall. Having taken the advice of the City Solicitor, I found I was compelled to put the resolution to the Board, which thereupon was passed and became an order of the Board, upon which all licenses have been renewed and now are effectual until the 15th day of January next.

I personally regard this prepared resolution passed in this way as intended to defeat the operation of the by-law and feel that if the spirit of the law is to be maintained, the council is allowed to prevail the good government of the city is imperiled.

I submit this report to the council, praying that some action may be advanced promptly to deal with this very anomalous situation in which, as Executive Head of the city and council I am placed.

A. J. MORLEY, Mayor. Mayor Morley spoke at some length to the above. Although the by-law had been passed by the council, which had been duly elected by the citizens, it was rendered impossible by the action of two political appointees. It was possible for effective regulation of the liquor trade if the measures of the council were to be thwarted by these men. They had never even pretended to give him cause to speak to the matter. He had a large bundle of letters from license holders in which they reiterated their willingness to comply with the terms of the by-law, provided they were given a little more time.

It was unfair to the citizens of Victoria that such a condition should exist. Those citizens had the right: First, to elect a council to act for them, and second, to pass by-laws and enforce them. Yet these two commissioners had the power to say: "We will rule this entirely out of existence."

He called upon the council to aid him in having this anomaly done away with. Ald. Gleason then moved, and Ald. Weston seconded, the following motion: "Whereas, by report of his worship the mayor, it appears that without considering the action of the council submitted to them and without replying anything to be urged by the proper authorities and with the obvious object of defeating the operation of the Liquor License Regulation by-law, the two of the three licensing commissioners, Commissioners Phillips and Ross, passed by majority vote a resolution that all liquor licenses be renewed."

"And whereas, this general resolution precluded the board from correcting what the council are advised are illegal licenses, the holding of licenses and also defeated the action of the council on the report of the chief of Police it was intended to urge against certain of the licensed premises."

"Be it resolved, that the facts be communicated by the mayor to the executive government with a view of action being taken to rectify the violation of this violation of the council's rights as the representatives of the citizens charged with the good government of the city."

Ald. Gleason stated that he regretted the necessity for such a motion. Although the council had unanimously passed the resolution, it was not the intention of the council to do this. Ald. Ross ("I do not," said Ald. Ross) these two men have undertaken to render null and void. It was time to take action upon the matter. He would like to ask Ald. Ross why he had acted as he had.

Ald. Ross stated that he had acted as he thought best. What he had done he would do again if necessary (hear hear). He considered that the by-law oversteps the statute. As far as his being a political appointee, he did not know at whose instance he had been appointed. "If however," he said "you think that I would occupy any position where I would not act as my own judgment induces me, you are in the wrong."

He took exception to the tone adopted.

ful statements of ours have been doing. (Laughter)

Carried Out His Mandate "I can only say in conclusion that I believe I accomplished all that could be done. I went to London under your commission to do what I could, and I do not claim to have done anything worthy of particular note. There are lots and lots of men who could have gone to London and performed the mission as I did, but I went and carried out the mandate of the province with the will of the electorate behind me. I found I had a strong case, and my reception was kindly and generous."

Tribute to Winston Churchill "I would like to refer to the kindness of Mr. Winston Churchill, who is a most interesting man, perhaps the most interesting man in Imperial politics today. He is a man of 32 years of age, and yet had to confront people in authority; a man of a strong mind and ready grasp. "You might notice that he is always ready and willing to announce the policy of the government of the Old Land. It is not for us to discuss that policy. I mention him now simply to pay this tribute to his worth as an Imperial statesman."

Faith in Lord Elgin "I also met Lord Elgin, who was also worthy example of an Imperial statesman. May I again state that I have not the slightest belief in the despatch I received this afternoon. Sir Francis Hopgood was also extremely courteous, and was always ready to discuss matters in detail."

"Mr. Hamar Greenwood has lived in England for a good many years, a government platform speaker, very, very tactful, and diplomatic. Mr. Greenwood is senior member for York. He is next to Churchill, and occupies a position of some responsibility. It is only right to say that Mr. Greenwood is always to be found in his place ready and willing to discuss questions relating to this province, and always anxious to take up any line of argument and carry on a discussion in order to ascertain the truth."

People May Know "I feel that it is my duty to make these observations so that people may know what it means when people talk about going 'to the foot of the throne' and know what is to be expected. (Loud applause.)

"I can only say that I shall always treasure this address as a souvenir of this occasion, and furthermore to commemorate the demand of the people of British Columbia for British fair play. (Loud and continued applause.)

Three Cheers and Tiger At the conclusion of the premier's speech the chairman called for three cheers for Hon. Richard McBride. The response was instantaneous and unmistakably unanimous. The three cheers were followed by a tiger, and then when the band broke forth every body who could sing, and some who could not, joined in the old familiar song.

Three cheers for His Majesty the King, and the national anthem brought the meeting to a close. The premier was delayed for some time by people anxious to shake him by the hand and offer their congratulations.

Handsomeness Present The present which accompanied the address was greatly admired by all who saw it. It consisted of a large sterling silver tea and coffee service enclosed in a leather covered and plush lined case. On a silver plate on the cover of the case was inscribed: "Presented to the Hon. Richard McBride, K. C., Premier of British Columbia, by the Conservatives of Victoria in consideration of his success in London in maintaining provincial rights. July 15, 1907."

Letters of Regret The following letters of regret, received by the secretary, were read by the chairman at the opening of the meeting: Victoria, B.C., July 14, 1907. W. H. Price, Esq., Sec. Victoria Conservative Ass'n.

Dear Sir.—I did not receive your invitation until this evening, my messenger having forgotten to deliver it—kept me in a state of anxiety. I am, I am, I am, but really I cannot attend on the platform.

Of course I consider the premier to have obtained a brilliant victory, of grave importance not only to British Columbia but also Canada at large. J. S. HELMCKEN. Winona, George Road, July 14.

W. H. Price, Esq., Sec. Victoria Conservative Ass'n. Dear Sir.—Excuse my not replying to the invitation of the Victoria Conservative association to occupy a seat on the platform to-morrow night. My business turned this morning from upper country, when I received your card. I am sorry, as I am a busy man, but I cannot attend on account of previous engagement made some time ago. THOMAS ELLIS. Victoria, July 13, 1907.

W. H. Price, Esq., Sec. Victoria Conservative Ass'n. Dear Sir.—It is with regret that owing to the absence of one of my assistants, I am unable to be present on Monday evening next to welcome the Hon. Richard McBride on his return from England, but you have my best wishes for most happy and hearty reception, which he most truly deserves at the hands of every true and faithful British Columbian. THOMAS SHOTBOLT.

Welcomed at Kamloops. Kamloops Standard: Premier McBride passed through Kamloops at 10:15, and during the short stop at the station an impromptu reception was held to welcome him. Although the notice was short about the hundred people had turned out and were present with the R. M. R. band when the train pulled in.

As Mr. McBride stepped from the train he was hurriedly greeted by those near and went at once to the band stand, where J. T. Robinson, president of the Kamloops Central Conservative Association, spoke briefly, conveying to the premier the hearty congratulations of the people of this district on the successful issue of his mission to London and heartily welcoming him back to British Columbia. A magnificent bouquet was presented to Mr. McBride after the address by Baby Evans, the little daughter of W. H. Evans.

In reply the Premier expressed his extreme satisfaction with the nature of reception, coming as it did so unexpectedly. He felt that it showed that the people, irrespective of party feelings, were in accord with his efforts to secure recognition of the province's claim and the elimination of the words in the Subsidy bill which had been inserted as a perpetual bar. He had endeavored to keep the matter of Better Terms entirely free from party aspect, considering that it was a domestic question, not a party one. The province was now at liberty to continue the fight for adequate terms, and he believed success to be within measurable distance.

After the Premier closed, three cheers and musical honors from the R. M. R. band brought the proceedings to a close, and Mr. McBride, accompanied by Hon. F. J. Fulton and Mr. Manson, M. P. P., for Dewdney, returned to the train.

Workmen Threaten Japanese Los Angeles, July 14.—T. Yoni, a Japanese employed as a wiper in the Southern Pacific shops in this city, narrowly escaped serious injury at the hands of an enraged mob of American workmen today. Yoni was wiping an engine on which had been placed two small American flags. While wiping the engine, Yoni, it is said, turned and deliberately spat upon one of the flags. His action was seen by another workman, who immediately pulled Yoni from the engine to the ground, at the same time, acquainting the other workmen in the building of Yoni's act. A crowd quickly gathered and surrounded the Japanese and he was being roughly handled, when he managed to elude his assailants and escaped.

PREMIER McBRIE IS WELCOMED HOME

ful statements of ours have been doing. (Laughter)

Carried Out His Mandate "I can only say in conclusion that I believe I accomplished all that could be done. I went to London under your commission to do what I could, and I do not claim to have done anything worthy of particular note. There are lots and lots of men who could have gone to London and performed the mission as I did, but I went and carried out the mandate of the province with the will of the electorate behind me. I found I had a strong case, and my reception was kindly and generous."

Tribute to Winston Churchill "I would like to refer to the kindness of Mr. Winston Churchill, who is a most interesting man, perhaps the most interesting man in Imperial politics today. He is a man of 32 years of age, and yet had to confront people in authority; a man of a strong mind and ready grasp. "You might notice that he is always ready and willing to announce the policy of the government of the Old Land. It is not for us to discuss that policy. I mention him now simply to pay this tribute to his worth as an Imperial statesman."

Faith in Lord Elgin "I also met Lord Elgin, who was also worthy example of an Imperial statesman. May I again state that I have not the slightest belief in the despatch I received this afternoon. Sir Francis Hopgood was also extremely courteous, and was always ready to discuss matters in detail."

"Mr. Hamar Greenwood has lived in England for a good many years, a government platform speaker, very, very tactful, and diplomatic. Mr. Greenwood is senior member for York. Eight crews will compete in the regular monthly regatta of the James Bay A. A., which will be held at Keen's hotel, Shawnigan lake, on Saturday afternoon in connection with the programme of water sports to be put on there. The inducement of the valuable prizes offered by the management, the lake regatta has attracted the attention of the local oarsmen and thirty-two of the active members of the club will row on Saturday. The crews were selected at a meeting of the J. B. A. A. executive last evening. They are as follows, with the hours for practice:

7 a. m.—Brown, stroke; Gleason, Curtin, Nason, bow.

5 p. m.—Thompson, stroke; McCarter, Belyea, Bendrodt, bow.

The crews are all strong and well balanced, and they should furnish some great sport at Shawnigan lake. A large number of club members will go along to see the regatta.

Alberta Team Coming.

A football team from Alberta to be gathered together by Dr. Inglis of Calgary may visit the coast in September and play a series of matches with Victoria, Vancouver, New Westminster and Nanaimo some time during the latter end of September, says the Calgary Daily News.

CAPITAL GUN CLUB SHOOT.

Lenfesty Top Score in Leavell Medal Shoot With One Miss

The regular shoot of the Capital Gun Club at the Willows traps on Sunday drew out a big attendance of local gun experts, no less than 28 competitors taking part. W. N. Lenfesty was top score in the Leavell medal contest with 14 out of a possible 15. L. Leavell, J. Wilders and F. Fitcher were next in line with 12 each. W. McDougall had eleven and W. Peden and Price 10 each. In the merchandise shoot at 25 yds. here were 2 entries. L. Leavell topped the first class with 24. J. Wilders led the second class men with 18 and W. Winsby headed the third class performers with 18.

Weller Cup Shoot Sunday.

Next Sunday, the second shoot for the Weller cup will be held under the auspices of the Victoria Gun Club at the Langford traps. The shoot is open to members of both the local clubs.

Gunner Moir After Burns

London, July 15.—Gunner Moir will cross the Atlantic to meet Tommy Burns if suitable inducement is forthcoming.

EARLY START WILL BE MADE IN RUGBY GAME

Prospects for Plenty of the Sport Hereabouts During the Approaching Season.

William H. P. Sweeney, secretary of the Victoria Rugby Club, has received a letter from R. P. Woodward, of the Vancouver Rugby union, in which he says prospects are very bright for Rugby football in Vancouver this year. He wants to know what the Victoria men propose doing.

On October 26 a British Columbia team leaves for California and on this will be a number of Victoria players. However, it is advisable for a return match to be played in each city between Victoria and Vancouver before this date, so that the best men may be picked. A match will be played here about Christmas time against Stanford or Berkeley university, which ever one wins the championship of California.

Lanagan, of Stanford university, is now in Wellington trying to pull off a New Zealand invasion of the coast, so that between Vancouver and Nanaimo games and in all likelihood California and the All Blacks, the Victoria players will be kept in trim. However, it is advisable to start early and just as soon as camping is over the secretary will call a general meeting and practices will start immediately.

Denver Horseman Ruled Off

Denver, July 15.—E. Drummond and W. G. King, racing men were expelled at the Overland track on the charge of having "doped" Balston Boy, running in the mile selling race. Balston Boy ran poorly in the race, but woke up right after it was over and ran away with his jockey. Investigation showed that he had been fed two ounces of laudanum in a bucket of bran, and that the stuff had not been to "work" properly until after the race was run. Presiding Judge Stebbins secured evidence sufficient to establish the fact, and ordered men and horse removed from the track. Officers of the Humane society who investigated, plan to have them arrested.

Marvin Hart Quits Ring

Chicago, July 15.—Marvin Hart says he is through with the ring for good. The Kentucky heavy-weight's hand, is useless as far as fighting is concerned, which necessitates his turning his attention to some other line of commercial enterprise. Five years ago Hare broke his hand on the head of George Gardner, and ever since then that injured member has gone back on him in battles.

In his recent bout with Mike Schreck at Tonopah, Hart's hand became useless. As a result an operation was found necessary, and a bone was removed. This, of course, means that Marvin Hart will never be seen in the ring again.

At Liverpool Sussex made a very poor show against Lancashire, who gained an easy victory by 307 runs.

The Southern had been set 337 to get in the last inning, but so badly did the batsmen shape against Dean and Huddleston that the whole side were disposed of in ten minutes for only 29, of which eight were extras. Fry was run out, failing to score for the second time in the match. For Lancashire, Tyldesley hit 117 in one hour and 55 minutes. Scores, Lancashire, 116 and 298 for 9 wickets (declared); Sussex, 78 and 29.

Supporters of Lancashire will be glad to hear that A. C. McLaren captained the team against Nottinghamshire, this being his first appearance of the season. He has been on a visit to K. S. Ranjit Singh in India, and only returned a week ago. He has greatly benefited by the trip and is in better health than for some time past. The result of the match is not to hand.

York Defeats Essex

Yorkshire beat Essex by the substantial margin of five wickets, after a by no means sensational game, though the result was in doubt until Myers and Kayes' careful batting fairly forced runs in spite of fine bowling and clever fielding. Scores, Essex 124 and 109; Yorkshire, 160 and 95 for five wickets.

SURVIVORS OF SKEENA DISASTER

Three Passengers of Mount Royal Arrived by Steamer Princess Beatrice

VICTIM'S BODY BROUGHT HERE

Many C. P. R. Steamers in Port Yesterday—Earl of Douglas Coming to Load at Clayoquot

With three survivors of the wreck of the Hudson's Bay Company's river steamer Mount Royal among her passengers and the remains of the victim, the steamer Princess Beatrice reached port Sunday from Skagway via ports. Capt. Johnson and other survivors of the disaster will arrive by steamer Camosun, due here on Friday. No other bodies have been found. The survivors, who arrived by the Princess Beatrice, were Mr. Rhodes, E. H. Bessett and Miss Annie Tomlinson, who for 19 years has been resident on the Skeena river. The arrivals say that the Mount Royal struck bow on against Ring Bolt Island and afterward swung out so that her wheel jammed against the opposite bank and the stern fast against the opposite side of the canyon she acted as a dam against which the swift-running water banked and broke and overturned the vessel. When the wreck broke some of the crew, who escaped, went down the river on the broken hull. The lost pursuer, J. O'Keefe, of this city, is said to have gone back on board to recover his papers and cash, and the steward, Archie Willis, whose body was brought by the Princess Beatrice, is stated to have gone back to get food for the passengers who were left on the island in the canyon. As far as can be learned, he had no relatives in Canada and Horace Willis, believed to be a brother, whose name was found on papers found on the wreck, is being communicated with by the Hudson's Bay Company. The steamer Hazelton, from Wrangell reached Port Essington yesterday and started up the river.

There were 84 passengers on the Princess Beatrice, most of whom departed at Vancouver. On the trip up the steamer took Hon. Alex. Henderson, the new Yukon commissioner, and a delegation was at Skagway to meet him, while a still larger committee waited at White Horse. P. R. Fleming, agent of the P. R. Steamship line, was among the southbound passengers. Miss Tomlinson, daughter of Rev. Tomlinson, who carries on a mission at Meamskint, an Indian village from the north since she was a small child and on arrival at Vancouver saw for the first time an electric car.

The Princess Beatrice left at midnight for Vancouver, taking the trip of the Princess Victoria. She is to be placed in the run to northern British Columbia ports alternating with the Amur.

SOCKEYES IN THE FRASER

A Few Fish Taken by Fishermen on Sunday Night

New Westminster, July 15.—For the first time this season the boom of the fishermen's signal gun, starting them on the chase for their excellency the sockeye, was heard on the river at 6 o'clock last evening, and fifteen minutes later the river in the vicinity of Steveston was a thickly dotted with sails as it is in the middle of the season. Captain Ackerman, of the patrol boat Georgia, who arrived about 8 o'clock last evening from the mouth of the river, stated that there were fully 600 boats between the sand heads and Steveston. A large percentage of the fishermen at the mouth of the river were Japs. On his way to New Westminster, the captain of the Georgia saw no persons taking in fish.

Captain Kennedy, of the little steamer Swan, who came up from Deas Island last evening, reports that there were about 50 boats out between Deas Island and the Narrows, most of which were in the vicinity of the Ewen cannery. Captain Kennedy stated that he spoke to one fisherman who had already secured three sockeyes, but so far as he could judge on the way up, no good catches were being made.

There were quite a number of boats out in front of the city last evening all of which appeared to be doing a little business. The cannerymen are giving the sockeyes three or four days yet to get properly running in the river, and very big catches are being looked for before the end of that time. That they are commencing to come in numbers is shown by the jumping and splashing in the river that may be seen going on continually.

CHIPPewa IN PORT.

New Sound Steamer Makes Initial Visit to Improve Service.

The steamer Chippewa of the Alaska Steamship Company, which was bought on the Great Lakes and the Victoria-Seattle route, after being remodelled and converted into an oil-burner and much improved, began her service between Victoria and Seattle on Sunday. She reached port on Sunday at 1:30 and, when her passengers had landed, was inspected by a large number of visitors. Capt. H. Carter is in command, and the crew of the steamer Indianapolis has been taken over. On Friday she made a trial run on the Sound with 100 transportation and hotel men on board and made 18½ knots an hour. She is 30 feet longer than the Indianapolis, and with more beam. She is well furnished and has a large observation room aft on the upper deck. The furnishings are

In mahogany, rattan and are upholstered in brown velvet. The dining room, which has accommodation for 100 at a sitting, is inland with hardwood.

The company has decided to give a daily service with the Chippewa. The Indianapolis laid over at Seattle on Thursday of each week, but this practice will be abandoned. On Thursday next the Chippewa will make a special trip bringing a large excursion party of Christian Endeavorers from Seattle.

The Indianapolis has been placed on the Tacoma-Seattle route, and made her initial run in this service on Sunday.

GOVERNOR HAS TRIAL.

New Steamer For Victoria-San Francisco Route to Start Soon.

The Governor, the new steamer for the Pacific Coast Steamship Company built at Camden, New Jersey, and her trial trip yesterday, and will leave for this coast next Tuesday. The Governor is a twin-screw steamer, but otherwise is similar to the President. She will bring a cargo of coal from the Atlantic coast, and is expected in San Francisco about September 20th.

She will probably make one trip to Nome before the season closes and then will be put on the coast run. Capt. Jack Shea, formerly executive officer of the liner President, when that vessel sailed East to take charge of the Governor, William Martin, formerly of the steamship Montana, will be chief engineer of the Governor.

TO FLOAT ANDELANA

Another Attempt to be Made to Raise Ship Sunken at Tacoma

Another attempt will be made to raise the full-plated ship Andelana, which turned turtle at Tacoma one night about nine years ago and is now lying at the bottom of Tacoma harbor. W. J. Collins has a scheme by which he thinks the vessel can be lifted and he will undertake the task of raising the craft.

Several efforts have been made to raise the ship, but owing to the great depth nothing could be done. One diver had his life crushed out by the water, the air pump having been broken. Collins' plan is to fill the Andelana with air bags and with the aid of seows lift the vessel. A tube will be run into the hold of the vessel and the air bags will be forced down this. The Andelana is about forty fathoms, about a quarter of a mile from the St. Paul Mill dock. It is not safe for vessels to anchor near her inasmuch as there is danger of losing their mud-hooks in her masts.

The Andelana came to Tacoma to load wheat. One of her ballast logs broke loose and she turned turtle, carrying eight sailors to their graves. She was a fine ship and is still in fair state of preservation. It is believed if the craft can be raised at a not too great expense, $50,000, it is said, will be realized.

SHEARWATER FOR THE BERING SEA PATROL

British War-Vessel Leaves for Northern Sealing Grounds Today

H. M. S. SHEARWATER, Commander

Allgood, is expected to sail this afternoon from Esquimalt for Bering sea to engage in her regular sealing patrol about the Pribyloff Islands. The sealing patrol in Bering sea and the North Pacific will be greater this season than at any other time in the history of the sealing industry. Great Britain has the sloop-of-war Shearwater. The United States has five revenue cutters, including the Perry, Thetis, Manning, McCulloch, and Rush, which after being repaired at Seattle, is expected to sail north tomorrow, while Japan has the gunboat Musashi, about Russia has the cruiser Commander Bering, Lieutenant Dedimoff, Mandjur, and two other vessels off Copper Islands.

A San Francisco despatch tells of the boarding of the barkentine S. N. Castle by officers of the Manjur. Capt. Pederson of the barkentine stated that on June 18 he was out fishing in the Okhotsk sea, eight miles from the shore in company with the schooner J. D. Spreckels, the barkentine Fremont and the City of Papeete, all from San Francisco, when the Mandjur hove in sight. The commanding officer, said Captain Pederson boarded the Castle, seized not only the ship's clearance papers, but all of Captain Pederson's private papers and his master's commission and certificate. Captain Pederson remonstrated claiming his vessel was outside of the three-mile limit and therefore he was violating no law. The Russian captain, however, stated that no fishing would be allowed within thirty miles of the shore and gave the S. N. Castle and other vessels seven days to get beyond the limit. As a number of the Fremont's crew were on the shore at the time the vessels remained for six days awaiting their return. When on the sixth day the gunboat again appeared on the horizon, the Castle and the J. D. Spreckels sailed for San Francisco leaving the Fremont and Papeete. Captain Pederson will lay the matter before United States District Attorney Robert T. Devlin and request that it be taken up by the Washington authorities at once.

FARE ADVANCED.

Will Cost Twenty Dollars For Voyage South After End of Month.

The fare to San Francisco by the steamers of the Pacific Coast Steamship Company will be advanced on August 1st from $18 to $20. Advances to this effect were received here yesterday. The steamer President of the Pacific Coast Steamship Company reached port early this morning from the Golden Gate.

The steamer Amur will sail for Naas, Jedway and way ports again on Monday night.

CHARLESTON IS EN ROUTE HERE

Admiral Swinburne's Flagship Will Arrive at Esquimalt Tomorrow

IS COMING FROM ASTORIA

Vessel Is New Armored Cruiser With Four Stacks Similar in Appearance to H. M. S. Monmouth.

United States Consul A. E. Smith yesterday morning received a despatch from Rear Admiral Swinburne of United States steamship Charleston saying: "Expect arrive at Esquimalt on 17th. Swinburne." The admiral and his vessel, both new to the Pacific coast, will make their first visit to Esquimalt tomorrow. Admiral Goodrich, who was in command on the Pacific coast on board the United States steamship Chicago, visited Esquimalt last year with that vessel and the Boston and Princeton. The Charleston is a new vessel, built a year ago at a cost of $2,700,000. She is a new vessel, built a year ago at a cost of $2,700,000. She is a new vessel, built a year ago at a cost of $2,700,000.

The Charleston is similar in size and resembles in appearance somewhat the British first class cruiser Monmouth, which was recently at Esquimalt. She is a vessel of 1,000 tons, about 100 feet long, 25 feet deep, and is armed with a belt of 4 inches harveized steel, 3 inches thick at the deck, 4 inches thick on the sides above the belt and 4 inches at the positions of her main guns. The Charleston carries fourteen six-inch quick-firing guns, 15 three-inch quick-firing, 12 three-pounders, 12 one-pounders, 10 maxims and 2 three-inch field guns.

The vessel carries a complement of 670 officers and men. It is not known how long the cruiser will stay here. A Washington despatch tells of an indignation letter just written by Commander Winslow of the Charleston to the United States secretary of the navy denying allegations of smuggling made by United States newspapers when the commander detached himself from the Charleston on June 11th. Commander Winslow told of sending home his personal effects packed in small boxes to facilitate transportation. These effects, he said, were purchased in the United States. Continuing the commander says:

"I possess no rare wines and no large quantity of cigars, nor did I have a single curio. Such wines and cigars as I had were bought in New York, and during the cruise the greater part had been on board the ship approximately a year and were purchased at my expense for use on board the ship at occasional parties for private and official entertainment, principally official, and not for importation or even for my own use on shore."

Commander Winslow shows that so far from making any effort to conceal the landing of these goods, they were as a matter of fact, landed at the custom house under the eye of a customs inspector and sent directly to the railroad station without any thought that this remnant of cabin supplies would be considered dutiable.

When he learned later in the day and indirectly, to the contrary, Commander Winslow informed the collector of the duty of the goods, adding that he did not think they were dutiable, but if there was the slightest question he preferred to pay the duty in full. He says he supplied a complete list to the collector and paid duty in any case where there was a doubt in his own mind as to whether the articles were purchased in New York or a foreign country. The total amount paid, he says, was small. "A commanding officer of a vessel of war must be prepared to do whatever official entertaining may be required, and unless the extent of such entertaining can be foretold, as well as the date of the duty of the ship, he is liable to have stores for which he may have no use, or shore left in his hands. If the law exacts payment of duty on such things, I would seem to entail an unnecessary financial hardship on the officer, particularly as our commanding official entertainment as in the case of foreign navies."

VOLCANIC OUTBREAK.

Kamchatka Natives Caught in Showers of Dust.

San Francisco, July 15.—The outbreak of a volcano on the peninsula of Kamchatka on February 18th, has thrown the whole country into darkness for more than 48 hours and resulted in starving scores of natives, according to officers of the barkentine S. M. Castle, which reached this city.

The natives, some of whom could speak English, told Capt. Pederson and his men that they had no knowledge of the terrible storm that had come upon them. They knew only that while they were crossing the valleys in the first flush of spring the wave of dust fell upon them, followed by utter darkness that continued for two days and nights. Lava, almost hot, fell about them, and there were such showers of black ashes that their progress was stayed and they were lucky to find undried creeks and springs. But the party of natives was in dire straits and some of them had succumbed to their hardships. Capt. Pederson, in response to their request, sent off two boat loads of provisions which the suffering natives said would suffice to keep them on the way to Petropavlovsk.

FROM WEST COAST

Tees Returns From Quatsino and Way Ports—Leaves For Kyuquot

The steamer Tees which reached port on Sunday from the west coast with a total complement of 112 passengers, including salmon and Chinese, Indians, etc., was lying alongside the Mosquito harbor wharf when that structure collapsed at 3:30 p.m. on July 9, and reports that there were some narrow escapes. An electric light pole fell through the office building near the wharf. About 400,000 feet of lumber and 16,000,000 shingles were precipitated into the harbor when the wharf, which had not been properly braced collapsed and fell. The lumber and shingles were being salvaged when the Tees left Clayoquot sound.

Nothing was learned of any bush fire on the island coast, although those on board the steamer Tartar, reached port on Saturday reported having sighted a great column of smoke, seemingly from the island in the vicinity of Clayoquot, and her officers were of opinion a large bush fire was raging.

News was brought that the steam whaler St. Lawrence, detached from the Sechart station, left on Saturday for the Kyuquot station and was to have commenced hunting from there yesterday. Last week eighteen whales were brought to the Sechart station. The Tees spent sixteen hours there loading cargo, 600 barrels of oil and 1000 bags of fertilizer, the delay occasioned considerable protest among the passengers.

With the exception of the schooner Eva Marie all other sealers had left the west coast, and Capt. Jacobsen's schooner was expected to sail yesterday.

The Tees left again last night carrying a large freight. The trip is to be extended to Kyuquot, for which port she has a large amount of freight for the whaling station.

AT C. P. R. DOCKS

Busy Scenes at Belleville Street Wharves Yesterday

The C. P. R. docks presented an animated scene yesterday. In all there were nine of the C. P. R. Steamship company's fleet at the wharves during the day. The Steamer Princess Royal returned from her trial run to Ladysmith, where 275 tons of coal was loaded, and on her way down she ran for an hour over a measured course near Cadboro bay, making fourteen knots an hour and steaming on a perfectly true course. Capt. Locke was on her bridge, and Capt. Troup, superintendent of the company, and a party of marine men and others were on board. Capt. J. T. Walbran went to adjust the compasses. The Steamer Princess Beatrice, Capt. Hughes, arrived on Sunday from Skagway via ports, bringing 84 passengers. The steamer Tees, Capt. Townsend, came on Sunday from Quatsino, and way ports after a delayed trip, bringing 112 passengers and a big freight. The steamer Queen City, Capt. Gunns, came from River's Inlet, via logging camps and coast settlements yesterday morning, with sixty passengers, and was preparing to sail north again tonight. The steamer Amur, Capt. Locke, was preparing to sail for Naas, Skidegate and way ports, whether she left last night with a fair cargo and a large number of passengers. The steamers Princess Victoria, Charming, City of Nanaimo and R. P. Rithet were in port from their various runs.

SIX MINERS AMONG THE JAPAN'S VICTIMS

Ten Reported Killed by Explosion of Dynamite-Laden Barge

When the steamer Princess Beatrice was on her way from Skagway a broken spar and some wreckage was passed near Ketchikan, this being all that remained of the barge Japan, which was blown up on the night of July 10 when in tow of the tug Marlon near Ketchikan. All on board the Japan were instantly killed.

First belated the killed totaled four Japanese, three being the crew of the barge and the other a deckhand of the Marlon, who was struck by a flying splinter. It was stated at Ketchikan, however, when the Princess Beatrice was there that six miners were also among the killed, the total casualties numbering ten instead of four. Not a vestige of the pieces of broken wreckage of the vessel, were seen after the explosion. There were 1,000 pounds of dynamite, 200 tons of coal, and a shipment of mining machinery, all for the Brown-Alaska mining Company of Hedley, on board the barge Japan, the total being valued at $20,000.

The six miners who were stated to have been lost were stowaways who went on board the Japan to make their way to Maple Creek, where they intended to work at the mines. When the Princess Beatrice was at Ketchikan her officers were informed by a number of residents of the northern part of the presence of the six miners on board the Japan and the story had it that they were engaged in an orgy before embarking, which they were believed to have continued in the hold of the barge which held such a dangerous cargo.

Altho the barge in tow of the Marlon was eight miles from Ketchikan when the disaster occurred the shock broke considerable of the windows of the northern port, and the noise of the explosion was heard plainly. Had the tug Marlon not been a long way from advance of her tow that vessel would probably also have met disaster. As it was she was shocked with fragments when the Japan blew up, and one of her crew killed.

KUMERIC SAILS

Weir Steamer With Cargo of Coolies Reported to Have Sailed

A Honolulu dispatch says the steamer Kumerie, with 1,200 Japanese on board, left the Hawaiian port on Sunday for Vancouver. The steamer will stop off this port to ship a Vancouver-bound and will be preceded by the mainland and discharged her cargo passengers. It is probable that she will be fumigated at William Head owing to some of the passengers from Funchal, Madeira, having died of smallpox on the way to Honolulu. The steamer is being discharged by a Japanese will proceed to the Sound and will be placed in the Oriental service.

A despatch from Oran, Algeria, says: "I've broke out today with such violence on board the British steamer Canada, lying in the harbor, that a destroyer towed her out into the roadstead and torpedoed her as the only means of saving her from destruction. The Canada can be raised without difficulty, as she lies in shallow water."

The United States lighthouse tender Heather was in port yesterday, anchored in James Bay, having called to ship some stores which can be secured more advantageously here than across the border.

ways, so that it was necessary to bring out a new crowd every time we wished to carry on the work.
I was very much interested in the report of the board with reference to the spawning grounds of the salmon, which last year were really wonderfully well supplied with fish. I myself visited two very important spawning grounds, the one at the headwaters of the Skeena, I was up every day in the waters of the Fraser last year, and I saw every river. I saw shoals of spawning salmon that astonished me with their numbers, although I am well acquainted with the spawning grounds of the province. I was amazed at the number of those spawning grounds. And if I told you some of the numbers of salmon there you would be surprised. And the grounds were in pretty good condition. It is necessary to have the spawning ground in good condition. Whatever we do by hatcheries, we must protect our natural spawning grounds. Everybody adds to that. And I know that this board holds that view, and will do all it can to support measures with that object in view.

Speaking of the industries which are really opening up, industries of great prominence, I now refer to the fishing industry. This industry now is on its way to great development. And many of you know something of the dividends paid by whaling companies in the last few years; you will know what I mean when I say that the whaling industry is destined to unprecedented development, because you have the richest whaling grounds on the globe.
I will not trouble you with any more remarks than these. There is still the question of provincial and Dominion jurisdiction. It was thought that when the famous fisheries judgment in 1898 was given in London, that everything was settled, that the Dominion had clearly defined the part it had to play in the protection and preservation of the fish of this country, that the provinces also had their part to play, in, as it were, lending aid to the people, in detail matters by which they were to enjoy the privilege of those engaged in fishing industries. In other words, jurisdiction belonged to the Dominion, and the enforcement of laws and the issue of licenses belonged to the province. But, unfortunately, international matters have sprung up, questions of public harbors, and what I may term territorial lines have arisen which seems to make the matter full of difficulty and full of complexity; and what the end may be immediately, I do not know. But I should like as a final word to say this, gentlemen, you will understand that I do not do it purely from a Dominion point of view, but against the province, but in the interests of fisheries and the fishing population of this country, I would like to see the fisheries of this country, the jurisdiction and management of the whole work of fisheries and its development, in the hands, not of separate, divided authorities, but one authority. Then I think there is an era of promise before us in our fisheries, the limits of which no man can foresee. (Applause.)

The Chairman.—We have listened with a great deal of pleasure to the interesting and instructive address of Professor Prince, and I am sure I am voicing the views of the board when I say that we hope Professor Prince will be able to attend the annual meeting of the board. We hope you will bear that in mind, Professor Prince, and think there is a welcome you again. Thank you. I have now the pleasure of calling on Professor Wright.

Professor Wright.—Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen: It is a somewhat unexpected pleasure to be asked to address the Board of Trade upon this occasion. But I take great pleasure in saying that I am very much honored by this, my first visit to the Pacific Coast, and that I am surprised among the opportunities which I have seen here, that immigration has not flowed very much more copiously towards British Columbia. I could only wish that the distribution of these fish, which Mr. Tatlow has referred to, because could promise at least one very willing immigrant to British Columbia if such were the case.

Do it Now! Don't Wait Until It's Too Late!

KEEP your body clean and clean in their outward appearance, but how about the inside?

Are you clean inside? And if not, how can you face the world with clean thoughts, clear intelligence, a fair, just, bright mind and get your full share of capacity for work and enjoyment?

Neglect of exercise, rich over-feeding and carelessness about stools, often leave the delicate internal mechanism in a nasty mess.

The small intestine is compelled to absorb the poison of decaying matter instead of wholesome nourishment.

The liver gets inactive; the bile doesn't "work off"; the eyes get yellow; the skin gets dead like putty and pale like dough; disfigured with boils, pimples, blackheads and liver-spots.

There's only one solution to the problem: Keep clean inside all the time. That's the answer.

If you can not diet, or keep your mechanism going by proper exercise, take Cascarets, the sweet, fragrant, harmless little vegetable tablets, that "act like exercise" on your bowels, and gently but powerfully clean out and disinfect the whole digestive canal.

A Cascaret every night before going to bed will "work while you sleep" and make you "feel fine in the morning."

If you have been neglecting yourself for some time, take a Cascaret night and morning and break up the "constipated habit" without acquiring a "cathartic habit."

Cascarets are sold by all druggists, 10c, 25c and 50c. The 10c size trial box is a neat fit for the vest pocket or lady's purse.

Be sure to get the genuine with the "long-tailed C" on the box and the letters "CCC" on each tablet. They are never sold in bulk.

Prof. Prince has referred to the circumstance that the Dominion government proposes to establish a scientific station for the observation of marine life on the Pacific coast. Various governments have done so from time to time. The American government—the work of the United States Fish Commission you are all well acquainted with. The British government has been very active in that way; the German and Scandinavian governments have all done very excellent work. And although much of that work has been turned out to be of important value, such as in the case of the troling fisheries of Scotland to which Professor Prince referred, yet one can never tell when a scientific fact which has been actually determined and which is of importance to the knowledge of importance—I say one can never tell when such a scientific fact will turn out to be of the utmost importance. And therefore I think it is very well that the Dominion government should have turned its attention now to the Pacific Coast. Especially since the fisheries of the Pacific Coast are overabundant, as it were, in importance, those of the Atlantic Coast. The marine biological station has now been at work for many years on the Atlantic Coast, and has turned out some very good preliminary work. But I am sorry to say that number of people that we can induce to go into the profession of zoology is very small, because the profession of zoology is not a lucrative one. And the number of universities in which it is taught by a staff of zoologists is yet very small. And the number of men who we can draw on for scientific observation is comparatively limited. I may say that the work which has been done by the Atlantic Coast marine station, has all been of a volunteer character, and I take it it will be so in the Pacific marine station. They were in the love of the work, and zoologists and amateurs, keen in the observation of what comes under their ken. I know that eventually British Columbia may have its own trained zoologists, who will be able to take part in the work of this station. I would refer to the admirable work which has been done by Rev. J. Taylor at Nanaimo in connection with the exploration of marine life. And I may say that Prof. Prince and I are going up to Departure Bay tomorrow with the object of seeing whether that would be a suitable site for the establishment of such station. So far you have not many professional zoologists in British Columbia; but suppose such a wealthy province as this, it is not looking too far ahead to say that in a few years you will have a university of British Columbia, established with a staff of trained zoologists, with a staff of trained zoologists, work, so as not to require the importation from the other side of the Rocky Mountains of zoologists for this purpose.

I thank you all very much for the reception today, and I tell you again how charmed I am on my visit to Victoria. (Applause.)
Col. Fallerie would like to ask Prof. Prince a question, if he would allow me. I see in the papers that some of the eastern salmon have been brought out here and put in the waters of British Columbia. Now, as Prof. Prince, knows, the salmon here will not take fly, or hardly ever. I would ask him if he thinks the eastern fish who do take the fly at home will bring the same ideas with them, when they grow up here; whether the eastern salmon that are brought here, and grow up in these waters will take the fly, or is it only a question of cold water or difference of temperature, or what?

Prof. Prince.—I am indeed glad to have that question raised, because it is one of those matters I do not think I have heard mentioned, and there is definite information upon it. And I may say you may rely upon it that those fish will bring with them the same ideas, that they have brought in by a circumstance of this nature, as in New Zealand, where the waters have many waters correspond with the waters of British Columbia, where they have high mountains and a good deal of snow water, the fish from the Old Country and the fish from Canada that were taken, and have proved not only a great success, but have exceeded in sporty qualities and size anything that they reached and showed in their own native habitat. So that the introduction of the different species from the East into British Columbia water promises a similar result.

ANOTHER WONDER OF SCIENCE

Biology Has Proved That Dandruff Is Caused by a Germ

Science is doing wonders these days in medicine as well as in mechanics. Science has proved that the human body has been troubled with dandruff, for which no hair preparation has heretofore proved a successful cure until Newb's Herpelide was put on the market. It is a scientific preparation that kills the germ that makes dandruff, or scurf, by digging into the scalp to the very root of the hair, where it says the vitality, curing itching scalp, falling hair, and finally, dandruff. Without dandruff hair must grow luxuriantly. It is the only destroyer of dandruff. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpelide Co., Detroit, Mich.

SHOT AT M. FALLIERES

Crazy Naval Reservist Tried to Kill French President

Paris, July 15.—The National telegraph yesterday was marred by an attempt on the life of President Fallieres by Leon Maillie, a naval reservist of Havre, who it is believed is suffering from the effects of persecution. Maillie fired two shots at the president. He was placed under arrest.
On account of the activity of the anti-militarists who tried to organize a demonstration against the army throughout France yesterday, exceptional precautions were taken to safeguard the president.
The attempt on his life was made on Avenue D. Champs Elysees, where the president was returning to the palace from Longchamps, where he had reviewed the garrison of Paris in the presence of 250,000 enthusiastic spectators.
The president's secretary, M. Lannes, the president's secretary, were with the president in his landau, which was escorted by a squadron of cuirassiers. The carriage had safely emerged from the Bois de Boulogne, where the anti-militarists had stationed themselves, with the intention of shooting the soldiers, and descending the broad Champs Elysees among the acclamations of the crowds, when the two shots point blank at the president's head were fired.
President Fallieres was not hurt, but the diplomats who were following the president landau alighted from the carriages and hurried to his side. Finding that nobody had been injured the president ordered the cortege to move on.

In the meantime two policemen seized Maillie, who made no resistance, but the police with difficulty prevented the crowd from lynching him.

Maillie refused to give any reasons for the act, saying: "The revelations I have are so grave and serious that I will only make them before a magistrate for transmission to the chief of state. It is a matter between government and me; I am the victim of many villainies."

Some of the witnesses of the shooting said Maillie fired in the air. It is believed that the man participated in the recent seamen's strike and that his mind has been unhinged by fancied grievances. He is believed also to be aided in the revolutionary agitation of the general federation of labor and the anti-militarists.

Maillie appeared before an examining magistrate but the authorities succeeded only in extracting from him a rambling statement of family personal grievances against his wife. In order to draw public attention to his grievances, he said that he fired the shots.

The prisoner terminated the examination by evidencing his intention to give no further explanations as he believed the magistrate would do nothing to rectify his wrongs.

President Fallieres has received numerous telegrams of congratulation from the rulers of many countries on his lucky escape.

The attempt on the life of the president will probably strengthen the government's intention to stop the anti-militarists' propaganda, which is already demoralizing the army and becoming a menace to the republic.

The steamer Erla landed her passengers at Quebec on Saturday from Liverpool.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Complaints of Sidewalks.

Sir,—What might have been a serious accident to the lady who was accompanying me last Saturday evening, had not the sidewalk in front of 108 Dallas road, and as the cause of it is a matter to which I have been paying some attention lately, I feel compelled to write you thereon. At the time the accident took place we were walking quietly home to dinner in the dusk of the evening, when, without any warning my friend suddenly tripped and fell somewhat heavily to the ground. Fortunately, beyond a few superficial bruises, no serious harm was done, although, of course, the shock produced a nasty feeling of faintness; seeking for the cause of the accident, I discovered a nail had sprung loose in the wooden sidewalk and projected about two inches therefrom.
Surely, sir, the time has come when the city council should consider the abolition of the sidewalk, and the city of the size and importance of Victoria, it is nothing short of a public nuisance, and it should still be allowed to exist. Granted, however, that its abolition is a matter of time, surely it is not too much to ask that the city council should see that these wooden sidewalks are kept in such a state of repair that they do not constitute themselves a source of danger to pedestrians. It cannot cost very much to have them periodically inspected and when necessary repaired, and at the same time the city council should see that the sidewalks are kept in such a state that they might be cut, and so cause our streets to present a respectable and tidy appearance. Day after day we read in the columns of the "Colonist" editorial remarks made by visitors on the fair beauty of our city, and whilst I also, perhaps, he permitted to say that I never, even in the humblest village in the old country, seen streets and pavements so filthy and unclean as those of Victoria. I am, of course, quite aware that plans are being regularly submitted to the city council for the removal and other improvement of many of our thoroughfares, but, at the same time, these wooden sidewalks also call for attention. I would not have it permitted to remain in the disorderly condition in which I find them, but I trust that you will see the wisdom of drawing the city council's attention to the need for immediate reform in connection therewith in the editorial columns of your invaluable journal.
Yours faithfully, A. J. KENAH.

The Causeway Park.

Sir,—Col. F. B. Gregory's admission in the "Colonist" of today that he is pleased to see the improvement of the Causeway park is in favorable contrast to his censorious reference two days earlier to the same park as a "sham." In my letter of 12th inst. I plainly stated I had no comment to make on the waste of water question. Not long since I think the "Colonist" made a short homily on the virtue of saying a few words of appreciation to the living rather than placing flowers on the graves of the dead. Putting into practice that excellent counsel, I stated in the "Colonist" for the information of the present city council, while it is yet alive, that I for one would place no flowers on the grave of the improvement lately made at the northwest corner of the Causeway.

and I was prompted to do this by what appeared to me to be Colonel Gregory's understating of the value of that improvement. I hope a similarly effective change will soon be made at the other end of the Causeway, concerning the present condition of which I must state again heard uncomplimentary remarks by recent arrivals from England, now resident in the city.
Colonel Gregory had thought it well to give a lesson in brevity of expression by suggesting that anyone of this trifling of names, which to me appear misleading, is better than my offering (yet distinctly accurate) expression, "the small planted and grass covered plot opposite the general post office." Let me think a moment: was it my grandfather who three days earlier wrote to the "Colonist" about "their small patch of lawn at the northern end of the Causeway," or did a mischievous compositor, without the gallant colonel's knowledge, insert the expression in his letter? Is not "example better than precept?"
Now, as I beat a retreat and leave the field entirely to the "waste of water" contestants, I do so with fervent entreaty to the city council to see that adequate water provision, so that there need be no further nocturnal watchings by the colonel nor that other zealous citizen who for many years has been a city flagrant delicto at "about 3.30 a.m."

A New Subdivision

If you want a bunch of real desirable lots in a good locality, at much less than prices of surrounding property, we have them. Lots are 50 by 135 feet, all have a southern frontage and a beautiful outlook over Oak Bay.

They are only about five minutes' walk from tram line, and we have it on authority that the car line will pass them very soon. For quick sale we will sell them at $350 per lot in pairs and give good terms.

These lots are cheap, and we firmly believe they are moneymakers, and will bring a much higher price this coming fall. Compare prices and act promptly. We reserve the right to withdraw them from the market without notice.

PULP WORKS AT SWANSON HARBOR

An Industry Which Promises to Become One of the Largest in Province

At Swanson Harbor, about half way between Vancouver and Port Essington, there is in the making an industry which promises in its time to become one of the largest in British Columbia, in fact to rank with the biggest and most extensive in Canada. This is the factory of the Canadian Sulphide and Pulp Co., Limited. Work was only started on this factory about three weeks ago and at the present time the site of the future mills is nothing but a wilderness of burnt ground and blackened stumps, out of which the framework of a large sawmill is rapidly growing into shape. The sawmill, when completed, will be one of the largest on the coast—and it is merely an incidental part of the whole plant. Thirty-five men are now employed on the construction of this building and it is rapidly nearing completion. The machinery is all on the ground and is now being installed. It is expected that the first lumber will be cut within two months.

In addition to the sawmill the company is planning the erection of a large pulp mill in which the spruce timber of which an unlimited supply exists in the neighborhood will be ground into material for the manufacture of paper. The original plan of the company was to have shipped this wood in its raw state to be turned into paper elsewhere. It has now, however, been decided to manufacture the paper right on the spot and plans have been prepared for a great plant in which all grades of paper from the roughest kind such as is used for wrapping purposes, to the finest grade stationery will be turned out.

This plant, with the pulp mill will be located at the foot of the falls which run into Swanson Harbor, and from which can be secured power sufficient to run the whole concern. These falls are a prominent feature of the landscape of the neighborhood. They are close on one hundred feet in height, and receive a never failing supply of water from a lake situated about a mile inland. This lake makes a great natural reservoir and has the effect of keeping an equable flow at the falls the year round. At the present time the works are supplied with water from the falls, but with this exception they have not yet been utilized. An engineer will leave Victoria for the harbor within the next few days and under his supervision a concrete dam will be built across the foot. From this will be secured 500 h.p. units of power for use on the immediate requirements of the company. This, however, is a mere fraction of the possibilities of the falls and later the dam will be much increased in size and a large plant installed for the purpose of transforming the water power into electricity. By means of this the whole plant will be run. At the present time the company is running a small sawmill, in which are being cut and prepared all the timbers for the erection of the buildings. The large sawmill will when completed be first run by steam power, but this will later be changed to electricity.

So far as shipping is concerned, the facilities of the company are unsurpassed. The entrance to Swanson Harbor is through a narrow land locked channel. The mill race which ascends straight from the water on either side, entirely shut out the wind, insuring calm, heavy, much the tempests may rage on the Pacific itself. The channel, moreover, is of great depth throughout, and so abruptly does the shore descend that even at low tide there is a depth of thirty feet of water at the wharves which have been erected by the company. Even at the end of the sawmill which stands for fully half its length on the land, there is sufficient water to allow vessels of the draft of the Empresses to load directly from the mills. At the present time the company has but one wharf, this being ample for all requirements. Work will, however, be started in the near future on the erection of docks, piers, and a wharf close on a quarter of a mile and embracing the whole front of the works.

Altogether, when the plant is ready for operation, the company will represent an expenditure of over half a million dollars. Two hundred and fifty men will be employed in the work of the mill, and the company will be a good store, at which all necessities can be secured. It is in full operation, and work has been started on the erection of a large hotel for the accommodation of the employees alone. At present they are housed in little cottages fronting on the sea.

A more pleasant spot in which to live than the harbor it would be impossible to imagine, in fact had it not been selected for a more utilitarian purpose it would have made an ideal summer resort. The climate in summer and winter is splendid, and for pastime in spare hours the residents have any amount of sport. Hundred pound halibut can be caught off the wharves; the lake abounds in trout, while the surrounding hills are full of deer and bear. The spot is a regular sportsman's paradise. The limits of the Canadian Sulphide & Pulp Co. embrace in all thirty-five square miles of territory covered with timber, the majority of which is spruce. They are not all in one piece, having been selected so as to lie along the shore line, making their logging an easy matter. So far, they have scarcely begun to cut, all the timber used in the construction of the buildings having been brought out by Indian hand loggers. In its limits the company has a supply of timber, which, with proper conservation, will prove practically infinite.
